Lone Gay S.F. Supervisor Faces Re-election Battle

by Kevin Roderick

SAN FRANCISCO, CA _ This time of year the skies clear and the tourists return, unaware of the political skirmishes that shape careers and alter the lives of San Francisco citizens .

This year, much local interest circles the city's leading openly Gay official, Supervisor Harry Britt, who traveled to the Westside of Los Angeles to raise campaign funds at a reception hosted by actress Jane Fonda and a liberal banker.

Britt, the successor to slain Gay Supervisor Harvey Milk, wanted to tap the Westside money sources that have donated to Democratic presidential contender Walter Mondale. He may face a tough reelection fight in November that could leave San Francisco without a major openly Gay elected official.

Outspoken support for rent control and his sponsoring of an unsuccessful push to grant some Gay couples legal status have helped Britt, a vice president of Democratic Socialists of America, build a base of renters, some minorities and the far left. Some critics consider him a radical.

Others including some Gays, have complained that Britt, a former Methodist minister from Texas, "is no Harvey Milk". Milk, killed along with Mayor George Moscone in 1978 by former Supervisor Dan White, has become a sort of folk hero in some communities here. There are a Harvey Milk library, park and arts center, and some of his old opponents have grudgingly given Milk credit recently for having been a charismatic political leader.

Britt's chosen role as a City Hall gadfly who rails at "downtown interests" and his connection to the Campaign for Economic Democracy, the political group run by Fonda's husband, California Assemblyman Tom Hayden, have helped cut him off from most sources of campaign contributions here. Though he raised enough to pay off a large campaign debt left from 1980, his money has come from numerous small fund raising events, an arduous and time-consuming practice whose results are undependable.

And despite his position as a Gay community leader, Britt's support among Gay contributors and voters is considered mixed. Political analysts here say his positions have alienated Gays aligned with Mayor Dianne Feinstein or who are more conservative, which includes most major Gay sources of campaign money.

"The upper and middle class Gays don't like him at all," said Bob Ross, publisher of the Bay Area Reporter, who still has photos of Milk on his office wall. Though he has supported Britt, Ross said "he hasn't done anything for Gay business, or any business."

A rivalry between the city's two largest Gay-oriented political clubs that dates back to Milk's day has also continued under Britt.

Britt's group, the Harvey Milk Lesbian and Gay Democratic Club supported last year's unsuccessful effort to recall Feinstein. The larger group, the Alice B. Toklas Memorial Democratic Club, did not support the recall, and Feinstein went on to win reelection to a new term in November with considerable Gay support. At least one Toklas club member and two other Gay candidates have said they plan to run in the November election.

An unknown factor is the recent bathhouse controversy brought on by rising concern about deaths from AIDS. Letters in the Gay media castigated Britt for supporting an official clampdown on bathhouse sex, designed to stop promiscuous encounters in the baths that some medical experts believe contribute significantly to the spread of AIDS.

The Toklas group has opposed any move by the city to close the baths completely. However, there is some sentiment in the Gay community and elsewhere for the city's crackdown, despite general agreement that the policy will be difficult to enforce.

At the beginning of this year, Britt, 43, reported a small amount of campaign funds, $4,200, in the bank. His committees had raised about $30,000 last year, but already had spent most of it.

Tucson Gay Barowners Host Phoenix Members

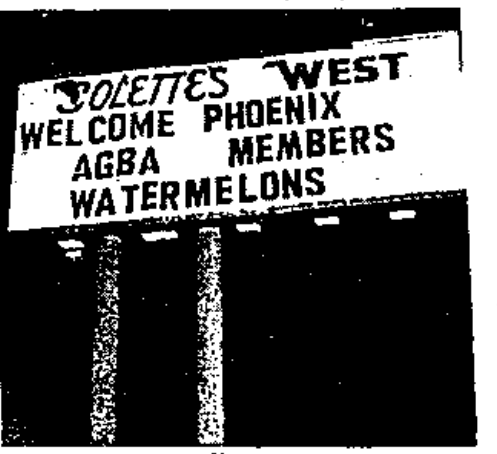
Members of the Arizona Gay Barowners and their guests getting off the double decker bus during their Tucson Gay bar tour.

TUCSON - The members of the Arizona Gay Barowners Association (AGBA) held their September meeting in Tucson on Tuesday, September 18 at Colette's West. The membership of AGBA is made up of 20 Gay bars in both Tucson and Phoenix.

The early arrivals were treated to a bus tour of the Tucson Gay bars on Monday night. The bus was sponsored by the Tucson barowners. Although the turnout was light, the spirits were up. A fine time was had by all who took advantage of the tour.

The major portion of the meeting was taken up finalizing plans for the big Octoberfest to be held at South Mountain in Phoenix on Sunday, October 21. Tickets for this annual event are available at all member bars now. T-Shirts will be available shortly. Plans are being formulated to run shuttle busses from several of the bars to and from South Mountain. As soon as plans are finalized we will print the schedules.

Tickets for the Octoberfest are $5.00 with proceeds going to the Arizona AIDS Fund Trust. Last year over $3,000 was collected for the fund. Expectations for this years Fest are high with each AGBA member chipping in to make sure it is the big event of the year in Phoenix. The logistics for such a large undertaking are staggering. 60 kegs of beer, 25 cases of wine, beans, salad and hot dogs to feed 2,000 to 3,000 people, and all for a very worthy cause. Make your plans now.



Colette's West has done it again with their outdoor sign.

SEC Sues Gay International

SAN FRANCISCO, CA (UP) - The Securities and Exchange Commission has filed suit in federal court here claiming fraud and stock manipulation on the part of the publishers of a homosexual telephone directory by Gay International Inc.

The SEC suspended trading in the stock of Gay International last November.

The SEC claims the firm offered for sale unregistered stock in the Utah-based corporation, made false and misleading statements to the commission concerning the stock and failed to file reports required by the SEC.

Stock prices in GII soared nearly 20-fold from 20 cents to $3.25 and in some cases $4 a share in a few months through alleged manipulation by the firm, according to the SEC.

GII has more than 4,000 shareholders and nearly 24 million shares of stock outstanding, according to the suit.

Named in the case along with the corporation were Alfred H. Cassidy, 73, San Francisco; Norman Coleman, 59, Castro Valley; Robert L. Hunnicutt, 37, general counsel; Norman Ironside, 57, Danville; Claire Singleton, 44, George S. Smith, 53 and Robert Smith, 30, all of Salt Lake City.

The firm began offering for sale what it termed "the world's first Gay/Lesbian telephone directory.

It was distributed in the San Francisco Bay area and other metropolitan areas. It lists businesses operated by or which cater to homosexual men and women.

GII was formed in 1983 as the result of a merger between a privately held Nevada corporation and a dormant Utah corporation called Landmark Publishers Corp.

EDITORIAL...

The other night I had the pleasure to view the first of the weekly television shows "Arizona Gay". I must say I was particularly impressed with the entire production. True, there were some minor flaws, but the entire, volunteer production crew is to be heartily congratulated for doing a great job. Jim Farias, the producer and director pulled it all together from scratch and did himself proud.

The other side of the coin is to congratulate the Gay men and women who dared to stand before the searching eye of the TV camera and bare their souls. It takes guts to tell the world about your innermost thoughts and secrets and that is what made this production, performed by people we know in our daily lives, most impressive.

"Arizona Gay" is off the ground and has already received very favorable reviews from the non-Gay media. Tucson can be proud to be a part of this historical first. A weekly television show by, for and about Gay people in our town, reaching out in an effort to educate not only each other but the non-Gay viewer also. It is a proud time for our Gay community as well as our entire city.

BRIEFS

CERAMIC CLUB TO FORM

TUCSON - Among the growing number of organizations being formed in Tucson, one of the more interesting is in the formative stage. Anyone who is interested in ceramics, whether as a beginner or as an advanced ceramic artist, and would like to learn or produce, even start a ceramic business, is encouraged to contact Jerry at 323-9478 after 6:00 p.m.

ULANE FIRED AGAIN

CHICAGO, IL (AP) - A federal appeals panel, finding that civil rights laws don't protect transsexuals from discrimination, has overturned a decision that ordered reinstatement for a pilot fired after a sex change operation.

The ruling came in Eastern Airlines' appeal of a lawsuit brought by Karen Ulane, 43. She sued Eastern over her dismissal in 1981, seeking reinstatement to her $50,000-a-year job as well as back pay and benefits.

"She is very disappointed" with the ruling, Dean Dickie, Ulane's attorney said.

MCC DEAF MINISTRIES CONFERENCE

FORT WORTH, TX - Metropolitans Community Church Deaf Ministries will hold an international conference at Agape MCC of Fort Worth on September 28-29-30. The Conference theme is "Bringing Good News", and will present a full weekend of classes, meetings and workshops dealing with planning and executing a deaf ministries program on local, regional and worldwide levels. The public is invited, a $10 registration fee is requested.

In conjunction with Spiritual Renewal services, a sign language choir will perform, and a candlelighting ceremony will be held to recognize congregations and individuals who have participated in the ministry.

Rev. Elder Freda Smith will preach at three services during this special weekend. Smith is vice-moderator of the Board of Elders and Pastor of River City MCC in Sacramento, California. She is the first woman to be ordained by the Universal Fellowship and the first woman to be elected to the Board of Elders.

The Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community Churches has approximately 32,500 members in over 210 congregations in 9 countries. The Deaf Ministries program is the most extensive of any denomination of its size. A unique feature of MCC Deaf Ministries is the fact that outreach is being made to deaf people worldwide. Materials are available in English and Spanish and will soon be available in Danish and French.

Agape MCC is located at 4615 SE Loop 820 in Fort Worth, closest to Exit 441, Anglin Drive. The church phone number is (817)535-5002.

FBI INFILTRATED GAY GROUPS

LOS ANGELES, CA (AP) - FBI files show the bureau spied on homosexual groups in several major cities during the 1950's and 1960's because it considered them a threat to national security, according to a civil liberties attorney.

The files obtained under the Freedom of Information Act, document FBI surveillance that included infiltration of agents and informants into homosexual-rights groups - in some cases even after no illegal activity was found, attorney John Heilman said last week.

CISSY GOLDBERG IN TUCSON APPEARANCES

TUCSON - For the first time, "The Queen of the Lounge Acts", Cissy Goldberg will make a Tucson stage appearance. Regal Productions, the folks who have annually produced the Empire Halloween Ball in Phoenix, have booked Goldberg into the BPR Room at The Fineline. Fineline owner, Dick Plowman, has remodeled his BPR showroom and it will be a little bit of Las Vegas glitter that will showcase the multi-talented Cissy Goldberg. There will be two shows on Sunday night Sept. 23 at 9:00 p.m. and 11:00 p.m. and two shows on Monday, Sept. 24 at 8:00 and 11:00 p.m.

Cissy Goldberg has entertained all over the United States and has proven himself a definite crowd pleaser, sparing no ones feeling with his hysterical views and opinions of Gay men and women. Those with virgin ears or weak minds should stay away, it is not a family-type show. But those who are interested in having a hilariously funny evening should not miss this opportunity. Tickets $3.00 per show. Reservations are suggested due to limited seating. Call 795-7467 for reservations and further information.

GAY WOMAN APPOINTED

NEW YORK, NY - The Mondale-Ferraro campaign has established a staff position of liaison to the Gay community and has appointed an openly Gay woman to take the job.

Campaign assistant Rosanne Deierhoi said the decision was made to name feminist activist Sandra Gillis to the position. Gillis, who was on vacation at press time and could not be reached for comment, has worked for the Mondale campaign for at least a year, primarily in the finance department, Deierhoi said. She has been actively involved with the National Organization for Women in New York and Virginia.

Deierhoi said that Gillis will "handle outreach, voter registration, 'get out the vote' - all the things we hope to do to get elected in November with the help of the Gay community.

LESBIANS AND GAYS GEAR UP FOR MARCH ON THE UNITED NATIONS

NEW YORK, NY - With support mounting from national and international groups, organizers of the International March on the United Nations for Lesbian and Gay Freedom have announced final details of the September 30 March and Rally, and are encouraging Lesbian and Gay organizations to build contingents for the March. Thousands of people from the United States together with activists from Europe, Latin America and Canada will participate in the March from the site of the Stonewall Rebellion to U.N. Headquarters, according to organizers. The marchers will demand that Gays and Lesbians be free of all kinds of persecution, including medical, economic, religious and political domination.

More than 100 organizations world wide hve endorsed the March. "We see this as a challenge to the U.N.'s policy of 'begnign neglect' toward Gay people," said organizer Ian Daniels, adding that the march will coincide with the opening ceremonies of the General Assembly which brings international heads of state and the world's media to the steps of the U.N. "It goes beyond the U.N. There's not a country in the world where Lesbians and Gays are free from injustice, hatred and violence. Like racism and sexism," he said, "anti-Gay bigotry is international. It's this we want to bring to the attention of the United Nations. The Lesbian and Gay movement is international, too. This is what we hope to bring to the attention of the community.

Among speakers at the rally are: Marco Antonio, representative of Grupo Lambda de Liberacion Homosexual in Mexico City; Sylvia Borren, a leader of the Dutch national Gay rights coalition and founding member of the International Gay Association; Gilberto Gerald, Executive Director of the National Coalition of Black Gays and former Gay liaison of the Jackson for President campaign; Sonia Johnson, excommunicated from the Mormon Church for her feminist views, and currently the presidential candidate of the Citizen's Party.

GAY MINISTER RE-APPOINTED

DENVER, CO - A Methodist bishop has re-appointed an openly Gay man to a post at a Denver church, despite a two-month-old rule that "self-avowed practicing Gays" may not serve as ministers in the United Methodist Church, reported the Charlotte News.

Bishop Melvin E. Wheatley named the Rev. Julian Rush associate pastor of St. Paul's United Methodist Church where Rush had served previously.

After Wheatley first appointed Rush to the ministry in 1981, several churches in the conference governed by Wheatley decided to withhold money from that conference. There were also public calls for the bishop's resignation.

Rush's appointment, along with two other appointments of openly Gay ministers to New York churches, started a nationwide controversy within the United Methodist Church which culminated in last month's ruling.

The church's General Conference, its highest legislative body, voted to adopt a statement that read, in part, that the "practice of homosexuality is incompatible with Christian teaching." The ruling is to take effect January 1, and has been appealed to the church's Judicial Council for a decision on whether it violates the church's constitution.

Just because you are not fat doesn't mean you can't enjoy a low cal meal - and just because you are fat doesn't mean you have to give up restaurant food.

Well, dieters and non-dieters, take a look at "Skinny Haven" restaurant. Not only do they serve you low-cal meals, they also help you count calories by noting how many you are eating right with the dessert list.

Off we went on a Friday night to Speedway Boulevard. As you know, anyone who can survive driving on Speedway deserves a drink, so once we arrived at our destination, we ordered Heinekens to calm the nerves. The waitress reminded us where we were and said sorry we don't serve beer or wine. However, she suggested a fruit smoothie. Who was she trying to kid! Anything with fruit in it, we would like. The fruit was blended with ice milk. It didn't taste as good as beer, but it was a good drink.

There is a large menu to choose from. Mexican dishes, quiches, crepes, pizza, chicken or veal among them. We shared an appetizer - a large vegetable plate with a creamy, garlic dressing. There was a good assortment of cold, crisp vegetables.

Our entrees were a "Skinny Burrito" and a Chicken Romanoff. The burrito is available with chicken or veal. We chose the veal, and it was as tasty as any regular type we have eaten. The Romanoff was interesting. A large serving, plenty of cooked, but crisp vegetables, mostly cauliflower and broccoli. They were smothered with cheese, chunks of chicken and some of the most unusual noodles we ever tasted. The entrees, though low cal, were very filling. But no, we had to try the desserts. One apple ala mode, and one hot fudge cake. We were disappointed in both.

We would suggest giving "Skinny Haven" a try. If we decide to watch our calorie intake, we are going to pop a "Lean Cuisine" in the oven, then for dessert go to "Katherine and Co." (See you soon dear). That would be as good, and probably less expensive.

Until we eat again....

DEAR ABBY COMMENTS ON GAYS

Dear Abby says that most Gay men and Gay women do not have any choice about their sexual preferences and are living their lives without apologies or guilt.

Responding to her nationally syndicated column to a correspondent who asked, "Are homosexuals and Lesbians born that way?" Abigail Van Buren said, "The vast majority of Gay people do not 'choose' to become homosexuals; their homosexual inclinations feel just as natural to them as heterosexual inclinations feel to straights.....Homosexuals and Lesbians are neither sick nor defective. And nobody 'went wrong'. They are simply a minority (approximatley 10% of our population) that for years has been misunderstood and discriminated against by an unenlightened society." Just Out.

DEAR BLABBY:

I am absolutely starved for some decent entertainment, how about you? I don't mean the same old run-of-the-mill drag show with the same old drag queens doing the same old songs that none of them know the words to. How about something live for a change. Let's face it, anyone can toss on a dress, a wig and a pair of heels and prance around wiggling their lips, hips and finger tips. Who needs it. Is there no real talent in this town. Is there no one out there to get out of the rut and put on a show worth seeing.

Dragged Out

Dear Dragged,

After reading your letter, I must say that many, many thoughts went through my head. First and foremost, I assume that since you sent me a letter you have read my column before. You do read, don't you. Secondly, I am taking a gamble that you wrote the letter yourself with no outside assistance. You do write? Third, and last, your plea for "decent entertainment" is for everyone in the community, not only for yourself (one would hope). This leads me to believe that you are aware of what goes on in our community and are prepared to get involved.

In this issue of The Observer you will find an ad for the upcoming, all live Cissy Goldberg Show. My suggestion is read it (if you can) and get yourself good seats in advance. This show is one not to be missed. So write (or perhaps mark) it on your calendar. This paper will let you know of many other events coming in the future at all the local taverns.

In closing, I would like to comment on your statement, "anyone can toss on a dress, a wig, and heels .... etc. etc." I couldn't agree with you more. This is the most truthful statement in your entire letter. Anyone can do just that, the trick is being good enough at it to make people want to see you do it. If entertainment is so easy, why don't you give it a whirl.

Blabby

P.S. Be sure to write up an ad for the paper. I would hate to miss some decent entertainment.

DEAR BLABBY:

Do you ever get letters from real weirdos? You know, ones that ask you all sorts of kinky questions about sexual fantasies and strange fetishes. Leather and chains, boots and whips, stuff like that? Do you ever get letters like that?

I am Curious Flesh Tone

Dear Strange Person,

No. Your letter is definitely a first.

Theatre REVIEWS

THE FOURTH MAN. Directed by Paul Verhoeven. With Jeroen Krabbe, Renee Soutendijk, Thom Hoffman. At Showcase Cinema.

"The Fourth Man" by Paul Verhoeven, who released the homoerotic "Spetters" last year, is being billed as the first "Gay, Catholic, Horror film."

Taking its cues from such diverse films as Hitchcock's "Spellbound", Roeg's "Don't Look Now", Clouzot "Diabolique", and most importantly from Wiene's "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari", The Fourth Man charts the mental disintegration of a writer's mind induced by the conflict between his (homo)sexuality and his (Roman) Catholicism. Part mystery, part thriller, the film is a vivid exploration of the machinations of a fervid Catholic imagination.

Unhappy, drunkard writer Gerard Reve (Jeroen Krabbe) gets the hots for Herman (Thom Hoffman) a young man Gerard notices in a train station while on his way to present a lecture. At his talk, he meets Christine (Renee Soutendijk) whom he finds attractive for her money, her boyish body and also, as it turns out, for her lover - Herman. While Gerard thinks he is putting one over on Christine, he discovers that she has been mysteriously widowed three times, and he begins to worry that he may become the title character.

The world in The Fourth Man is all seen through Gerard's doom-laden, religously overwrought mind. Death is always falling form the sky or washing up on beaches. Christine constantly wears whorish red outfits and smiles a seductive sphinx-like smile, while another woman dressed in madonna blue and sporting a Christly child and a carpenter husband, keeps on appearing as a glimpse of salvation. When director Verhoeven isn't tossing, at top speed, religious iconography at the audience, he is plying us with the most obvious of Freudian symbolism. Like his borrowings from other films, these blatant literary touches both highlight his story and key the audience in on the jake. Although we are privy to Gerard's mental disengagements, we are removed enough to see through them. We know not to take them seriously.

The Fourth Man wants to have it every which way. A mystery thriller with a touch of camp and enough "wierdness" to be both interesting and chic. It has a cool modernist style that places its medieval imagery into a nice relief and prevents us from getting too close to the content. Thoroughly calculataed, it sometimes overestimates itself and verges on cuteness when it means only to be overly clever. As Tallulah Bankhead once remarked about a Maeterlinck play, "There is less here than meets the eye." But despite over-ambitions and neglect of content for the sake of style, The Fourth Man does succeed. By playing more games than most other movies even attempt, it plays its own tosses and still comes out winning. There may be less here than meets the eye (such a good line, I can't resist using it twice), but there is a lot more than you get in most other films.

TKO and Rita's Rendezvous held their Uno Tournament last weekend and to say all had fun is putting it mildly. It was a quiet and relaxing afternoon for all to just kick back and yell "UNO". Due to the lack of numbers for this first tournament, the format was changed a little to make sure two rounds would be played Sunday. Thanks to this change, Monte and Jackie were able to move out of the losers bracket into the finals on Sunday.

If an award was given out for the highest score, Rita would have won hands down, with a 579 - one game! Maybe Sunday, if she plays against TKO members, she can get it together - lowest score, Rita.

The games Sunday proved to be more fun with TKO members challenging the losers from Saturday. At the end of the first round, the losers from Saturday showed no mercy for the TKO members, wiping out all but three of them. The final round for the consolation prize was won by Dan (Dough Boy).

As for the main final game played by the four finalists - Monte, Thom, Lloyd and Jackie, it was close all the way. Finally, as in all games, one person is the winner and in this case it was Thom S. Lloyd B. came in a very close second. Congratulations to both winners and if ever a Uno team is needed we can call on you two.

In one of the losers game, we found Ron T. sitting between Doc and Jimmy. After Doc and Jimmy passed their Draw 4, Draw 2, skip, etc. at Ron, he was never really able to get into the game. After the game, Ron asked Rita to 86 Doc and Jimmy. Anytime you want to get into another Uno game, Ron, be sure to call me.

Rumor has it that sometime in the near future, there may be a Uno Doubles tournament.

That is all I have to report this week because no word has been recieved from TALL, SOS, or the T-Squyares. See you next week and may all your experiences this week be on the large size.

banker Sheldon Andelson, a major supporter of Gay causes who is also a regent of the University of California, reportedly collected about $7,500. Guests paid $100 each to attend.

Britt was appointed to the board in January, 1979, after being "nominated" in an audiotape left behind by Milk, who had feared he would be assassinated. On the tape, Milk asked Feinstein to choose his successor from among four Gays, including Britt.
