'Early Frost' Rates High With Everyone

by Dan Huff

"An Early Frost" aired on NEC-TV last Monday, Nov. 11. This is a terribly sad tale of one young man's problems as a homosexual and an AIDS victim that is guaranteed to bring a lump to the throat of even the staunchest Old Testament-thumping archconservative. Which seems precisely the point of this project.

It's an argument against discrimination, not only for Gays but for disease victims as well, something that has been overdue in the recent spate of problem-of-the-week films flickering across our screens like grim ghosts on the Underworld Express.

"An Early Frost" is better than most. Never flashy or sensational, the writing is precise and poignant as it details the sorrow of one Boston family, the Piersons. Like most of these films, we see them living their normal lives first.

Michael (Aidan Quinn) has been named a partner in his law firm. He returns to Boston to tell his folks, Katherine (Gena Rowlands) and Nick (Ben Gazzara). What Michael can't tell them is that he's Gay, and that he's been living with his lover, Peter (D.W. Moffett), for nearly two years.

The two have a close, warm relationship. And Michael's relationship to his parents also is fairly good, despite his inability to tell them of his Gay lifestyle. Both relationships fall apart in the face of Michael's AIDS diagnosis. The film details their slow, painful regroupings in the shadow of the disease, ending on a hopeful note.

It would be hard to imagine such a difficult topic handled by a national TV network in any other fashion than the way it has been dealt with here. The film even touches, although lightly, on the issue of alleged promiscuity among Gays and one possible reason for the rapidly escalating number of AIDS cases.

The only tawdry episode occurs near the death of Victor (John Glover), the stereotypical "mincing" Gay who deals with his personal horror as bravely as any hardened soldier. As he discusses a studded dog collar to be dealt with in his will, we are led to believe it was worn by some kinky sex partner until Victor makes it clear he's really talking about a lost dog. Victor's death is one of the saddest points in this very sad film, which at least has the good grace never to lapse into the needlessly mawkish.

The acting strikes a note of realism seldom seen in relatively low budget TV drama. Gazzara and Rowlands, especially, seem like the folks next door, even if Quinn and Moffett are just a bit too bland to seem like real people. Nevertheless, you'd have to be more hard-hearted than a cast-iron sink not to empathize with these two basically decent men as their world crumbles.

And we can forgive the film's tendency to lapse into wooden, boilerplate-like dialog in spots when the characters are discussing the nature of the disease and the resulting discrimination. "An Early Frost" is, after all, a sincere, forthright attempt to confront a very real, very big shadow on the bedroom wall of our society. Shouting and screaming about evil and the judgment of a vengeful deity will only make matters worse.

As this film shows, in the darkness of ignorance where we live, love, understanding, sympathy and hope are badly needed.

"The film does not have a happy ending", AIDS is a fatal disease. [ED NOTE: Dan Huff is a television writer for the Arizona Daily Star from which this has been reprinted].

More TAP Fundraisers On Tap

TUCSON - More fundraising activities are scheduled for the Tucson AIDS Project (TAP) in the coming weeks.

Next Sunday, Nov. 17, the M & M's Sporting Mantles, will be serving a Mexican Dinner at Rumor Hazzit. The dinner is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. There will be a donation of $3.50 for a very delicious Mexican dinner, with all proceeds going to TAP.

After the dinner, at 9:00 p.m. there will be a fundraising show at Simone's, 2849 N. 1st Ave. (formerly Colette's West). The show will feature a number of performers including Aviva Diamond, Fans Limited, Monte-Jon and Rick Dillon, among others. Monte-Jon and Deb Weiland will act as hosts for the show which will feature song, dance, comedy and even a "slave" auction. Tickets for the show are $2.00 at the door with all proceeds going to TAP. In addition, Simone's is selling tickets for a 13" color TV and a microwave oven with all proceeds going to the Tucson AIDS Project also. These tickets are $2 each or three for $5.00.

This series of fundraising events culminates on Sunday, Dec. 1 with a benefit show at Rita's Rendezvous. During this show the winners for the trip for two to Hawaii tickets will be drawn. Tickets for this raffle are $5.00 each and can be purchased at various spots around town. The lucky winner will receive round trip air fare and hotel accommodations for two for one week in sunny, tropical Hawaii.

Proceeds from this show and raffle will also be donated to Tucson AIDS Project. Funding for AIDS is slow and hard to come by. We need to rally and support the many benefits and people who are working very hard to bring you a variety of events in an effort to support a most worthwhile cause.

Grand Opening For It's 'Bout Time

TUCSON - The new owners of the "oldest" new bar in Tucson, It's 'Bout Time, will be holding a Grand Opening celebration beginning this Friday and continuing through Saturday.

The new staff and management have been spending many hours getting this venerable old bar into shape for the celebration. Painting, polishing and decorating have been the order of the day for some time now and things are really beginning to shape up.

On Friday there will be drink specials of schnapps for .50 a shot, long neck beer for .75 and all well liquor for $1.25 from 6:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. closing.

Saturday the bar will open at its regular 10:00 a.m. hour but in order to get ready for the Opening Party, the place will close down for two hours, from 7 until 9 p.m. Everyone is invited to join the new owners, management and staff from 9:00 p.m. until closing in celebration of the Grand Opening of It's 'Bout Time. There will be some surprises and prizes. Special drink prices for Saturday include Long neck beer for .75 a bottle, and all well liquor for $1.25 from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Mark, Ed, Dan, Phil and Sandy will be there to welcome you as will staff members Bert and Jimmy, Jim and Sue, Dan, Dan, Dan (no that's not a broken record), Richard, Clint, Mark and Scott.

It's 'Bout Time is located at 616 N. Fourth Avenue and the new phone number is 882-3053.

Experimental French AIDS Program Expands

PARIS, FRANCE (AP) - A French doctor who helped develop a new treatment for AIDS announced last Monday, Nov. 11, that one of his patients had died, but said the experimental program has shown great promise and is being expanded.

Dr. Philippe Even of the Laennec Hospital in Paris said the patient, a 38 year-old French male homosexual, died Saturday. The man "had suffered from ... AIDS for at least a year," and first underwent experimental treatment with the drug cyclosporine three weeks ago, Even said. He described the man as "a desperate case" and said his death had been expected, given the advanced stage of the case and the patient's multiple infections.

Dr. Even and fellow researchers Dr. Jean-Marie Andrieu and Dr. Alain Venet announced on Oct. 29 that cyclosporine had been proved effective in fighting acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS). [OBSERVER, Oct. 30]

Many doctors here and in the United States criticized the announcement as premature, mainly because it was based on only eight days of tests with two patients. The man who died last Saturday was one of those patients.

A hospital source who works with Even, speaking on terms of anonymity, said the man had been sent home last week but returned to the hospital a day or two before his death.

Even said the nine surviving patients at his hospital appeared to be responding so well to cyclosporine that the treatment was being extended this week to at least five other French hospitals. He said the number of patients in the program would grow to 20 to 30.

"What can I tell you now as it concerns the first 10 patients we have really followed (under cyclosporine treatment) is that the results entirely confirm the hopes we had," he said.

Cyclosporine has been used for several years to prevent rejection of transplanted organs. The French researchers said it also paralyzed cells infected by the AIDS virus, preventing the spread of the disease and allowing the body to rebuild its immune system.

Dr. Even also revealed that another patient in the terminal stages of AIDS was treated with cyclosporine for two days and died, despite showing a "biological improvement." He said that death occurred two days before the Oct. 29 news conference and doctors had administered the drug with no hope of a cure. They gave the patient the drug with his consent simply to gather biological data, Even added.

Even also said that a woman with the related condition known as AIDS-related complex had responded very well.

As of Monday, Nov. 11, there were 14,519 known cases of AIDS identified in the United States.

Brazil #4

BRASILIA, BRAZIL (CNN) - The Brazilian government is organizing a national campaign to teach health officials and citizens how to avoid contracting AIDS, according to the Washington Blade. Pamphlets warning of AIDS symptoms and recommending prophylactic methods will be distributed in schools and to the general public.

Brazil currently ranks fourth in the world behind the U.S., Haiti and France with 415 AIDS cases and over 200 deaths resulting from the disease.

TAP BAKE SALE RAISES BUCKS

TUCSON - Blanche and Howard were on hand at Rita's last Sunday, Nov. 10, for a second bake sale in an effort to raise money for the Tucson AIDS Project (TAP). This sale raised $220.21 and the monies were turned over to TAP on Monday.

A big thank you goes to all those who came and supported the sale with their purchases. Also, this sale would not have been possible without the efforts of those who took time out to bake and donate the goodies. A very special big thank you to these dedicated people.

EDITOR'S COMMENTS

"An Early Frost", the NBC television drama that was shown nationally last Monday, Nov. 11 drew a whopping 29+ Neilson rating. Obviously everyone interested in gaining more information concerning Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome was tuned in.

The Tucson AIDS Project manned their Hotline during and following the show until about midnight answering questions from over 200 callers. The number of calls received by the Phoenix hotline numbered over 400.

The excellently produced show was a 'gem' in that it explained intelligently to the viewers the discrimination that is being made against people with AIDS, as well as the double discrimination if they happen to be homosexual. There is a review in this issue of OBSERVER that will explain more in detail about the show itself.

The fact of the matter is, every person who is homosexual, and every person who is an AIDS patient or who may have AIDS Related Complex, can be happy over this production. It was certainly an eye-opener for parents and friends of Gays everywhere. I have heard so many people tell me that they only hope that their parents watched the production. Mine did and they learned more positive things about AIDS as well as the Gay lifestyle and its problems with discrimination than volumes of books and lectures.

Thank you, Producer Perry Lafferty, NBC, the writers, actors and all who had a part in the production of this epic drama.

MISS GAY TUCSON APPLICATIONS

TUCSON - Applications for contestants who want to participate in the Miss Gay Tucson contest, will be available this weekend. The contest will be held on January 12, 1986 at The Fineline where applications may be picked up. Deadline for entries is Dec. 15.

Miss Gay Tucson will be eligible to enter the Miss Gay Arizona Pageant to be held early next year where she will be in competition with Miss Gay Phoenix. If that contestant wins or is 1st runner-up in the Arizona Pageant, then she becomes eligible to enter the Miss Gay America Pageant to be held in the fall of 1986. Watch for more details in future issues of OBSERVER.

JBC Productions is producing all the Arizona pageants and may be contacted by writing, JBC Productions, P.O. Box 44281, Phoenix, AZ 85064 or by calling 244-1188 in Phoenix.

ABNORMAL BEHAVIOR CHARGED

WILSON, NC - The director of the Wilson County Department of Social Services has charged that the state's Department of Human Resources has put "the entire student population" of Eastern North Carolina School for the Deaf "at risk, due to staff shortages and lack of staff training" in recognizing "abnormal sexual behavior."

Jerry A. Smith made the charge, after an investigation revealed that three male students, aged 11, 12 and 13, engaged in sexual activities with each other one night last March. The investigation, which resulted in the isolation of one of the boys from the rest of the students at night.

LETTERS

EDITOR, The Arizona Observer:

In December, The Copperstate Leathermen - Tucson Command will be chartered by this Association.

This Command (or chapter) will have local administration and will move rapidly to integrate into the local community fabric with the support and backing of this Association, it's brother Phoenix Command and all subsequent Commands.

The Copperstate Leathermen, as an Association, has never imposed any requirements or restrictions on the conduct of its full members, pledges or associates. Our people have consistently demonstrated that their maturity and respect for whatever surroundings they may find themselves in. This has been a highly successful formula that has earned us a high degree of respect in the Phoenix business community, among other organizations throughout the Southwest and has permitted us unprecedented growth.

We are good community citizens and friends. We maintain a high degree of visibility and are giving ever increasing support to fellow community organizations such as the Arizona Gay Rodeo Association because we believe the support and enhancement of expression alternatives is of significant benefit to all of us, no matter where our prime interests may lie.

It is our sincere hope and belief that in short time, Tucson will accept The Copperstate Leathermen - Tucson Command as a valid, viable and integral part of the scene, just as we hope future commands will emerge and be accepted in Flagstaff, Yuma and elsewhere throughout Arizona.

Respectfully

Dale A. McKissack, President
The Copperstate Leathermen
an Arizona fraternal association

Last Sunday evening at the Graduate will be one night highly praised for weeks to come. It was their "Turnabout" show and let me tell you the show was really great and loads of fun. Rather than me give you the details of this show, I'll steal a line from the Saturday AM cartoons and turn the review over to the Labor Day Virgin to report - "Exit stage left".

SOS held a good dinner Sunday prior to the show. Even if they had to eat it off early, I enjoyed it and was able to have plenty.

Other than that, the only thing going on now is the Arizona Brotherhood run in town next week. Applications have already been received insuring a fun weekend. For anyone, how I'll never know, who did not have a chance to either meet or see Nature (a nick name) at TKO's Spring Fling, he will be arriving next week. Of course no one person can make a run successful, but adding one as Nature along with 70 to 80 others, you know it's going to be a fun-filled weekend.

Applications are available at the Graduate for anyone in Tucson who'd like to join in on this run. Once again, the five sponsoring clubs for this event are: Tucson Arizona Levi/Leathermen (this year's host club) and the Tucson Knight OWS. From Phoenix the Sons of Apollo, Arizona Rangers and joining this year from Phoenix will be the Copperstate Leathermen.

The S.O.S. plans on adding their expert assistance in helping to serve the meals for the visitors. This is so the clubs can visit more with the out of state guests.

In closing, I'd like to send a personal get well to Annie. We all miss you and hope to see you real soon.

TBBS: IP was telling me the other night he got a new watch. It seems he couldn't set the sun dial for California time on his old one....Talking to Guppy the other night, I said everything she has is too small. Her response was, "Not my dildo." And right after that she turned to Roger B. and asked him if he would go to the bookstore to get her a larger one!...Saturday night as I walked into the Graduate, some guy was there selling roses at 1/2 price.... When S.O.S. has a dinner, you can be sure plenty of salad will be on hand. Last Sunday they showed up with 20 lbs....Bob was asking B. Mike what the difference was between him (B. Mike) and L. Mike. Would you believe B. Mike's answer was the checking accounts....There wasn't a drag queen safe at the show Sunday because IP was after all their beads.

WHO SAYS TUCSON IS A SMALL TOWN?

by Loretta von Oystershucker

I suppose you are all waiting for my response to last week's column in the OBSERVER by Dear Blabby concerning a cake I baked for the TAP Bake Sale. It seems the cake was not exactly up to bakery quality. Well, I feel that my dear sister Blabby handled the letter from "Tucson's Most Notorious Brothers" rather well. I feel I had a great influence on my slightly younger sister ("smile, it's not all that bad") over the years and she has always turned to me for advice ("Okay you two, now take your clothes off and get on the floor!") I could not have answered the letter any better myself.

Now as for "Tucson's Most Notorious Brothers", I can understand why the cake was so sweet to them. After all it was years that those two have only eaten Humble Pie. I really did want to make it up to them and I baked them something that I was sure they would find delicious, but I forgot where their bar was to deliver it in person.

Anyway, getting back to Blabby, my little sister has followed in my journalistic footsteps and fate has brought us together writing for the same publication. Now the Observer has such a small office that occasionally some of the letters sent to Dear Blabby end up on my desk and I do my best to make sure they get back to Blabby's desk. Occasionally, like a failed cake, I don't always succeed and some letters do not reach Blabby. So I would like to let you in on some of the best letters that should have reached Blabby and you can find out from her how she would have answered.

DEAR BLABBY: A few days ago I went to the Zoo and was shocked to see BOR putting on a public display in front of the monkey cage. Right there in public he was trying to show the monkeys how to do it by themselves, you know, self-manipulation. How could a grown man pull his own thing out in public and try to teach monkeys what to do with it. Signed, Embarrassed, but couldn't help but watch.

DEAR BLABBY: Last week I was entertained at a lovely dinner party along with six other friends. During the evening, conversation came up about Thom S., owner of Rita's. Two of the guests admitted that they had gone to bed with Thom and a third one said they think they had also, but wasn't sure. I was wondering if this was a frequent occurrence in Tucson with so many people in a group admitting they have gone to bed with Thom? Do you think it could be true or are all these people only saying that now that Thom is a bar owner and just want a free drink? Signed, Glad I don't drink

DEAR BLABBY: A very close friend of mine told me in private that Chuck B., a bartender at Rumor's left his husband and family to live the life of a single person. Yet, lately he has been seeing only one person, Skeets aka Beefcake. Do you agree with me in thinking this relationship could really work, especially with Chuck's experience in raising children? Signed, Slightly Soured Grapes

DEAR BLABBY: I was sitting in one of the local bars and overheard Roger B. and Don P. talking about the past over shots of Schnapps. When the subject of weight came up, I heard Roger say to Don, "Why, I remember when you could fit behind the bar at the Graduate!" Did Roger mean Don could fit behind the bar before a weight gain or a recent swelled head now that Don has a house in the foothills. Signed, Skinny, Green with Envy, and Bean Pole.

DEAR BLABBY: I recently met this new guy in town who seems really nice. His name is George A. and he tells everyone he is from Montana. Do you think when one is from Detroit originally it makes them more "butch" to say they are just from Montana? Signed, I like Bronco even if he is just a Colt.

DEAR BLABBY: A couple of guys next to me at the bar got into a heated discussion and one of them kept stating facts they heard from Bert H. over at it's 'Bout Time. I would like to know who is Bert H., what does he know and who listens to him anyway???

Signed, Follower in the Leather of the Law.

DEAR BLABBY: Last Sunday, I went into one of my favorite watering holes to see one of my favorite bartenders and discovered that he was not there. Now the bartender covering was every bit as nice, but I was really surprised to see a responsible person like Peter S. not on duty. The only thing I was told was that Peter could not work because of something he ate.

Signed, Girl Scout Cookies or Nothing.

DEAR BLABBY: I recently moved to Tucson and find it a fabulous city to live in. There are just a few questions I was wondering if you could answer for me. How does one get whisker burns on their back side like Bill McT. was complaining about? Who was Harry Howard waiting for at the Graduate last Sunday night that kept him pacing the floor and checking his watch? Does Hattie P. think Valentine's Day is just around the corner playing Cupid all the time? Finally, I've heard of a D.P.D.P. and was wondering just who he is and what does he do? Signed, New in Town Tommy S.

GRADUATE TURNABOUT SHOW REVIEW

Last Sunday, Nov. 10, the Graduate presented their 3rd Annual Turnabout Show. It packed the house, the crowd stayed through the whole show, then gave the performers a standing ovation, which this reviewer feels they deserved - and more.

Each individual worked hard and the show sparkled and flowed smoothly. I'm sorry I don't have the space to review each act. They all deserve to be mentioned with love.

There was comedy, tap dancing, serious song, Dolly Parton, a great "Pro" - Aviva Diamond and above all - Roger, whose sweat and toiling made a group of non-experienced people work and look good, all with love. That love showed through. The sweat and hard work paid off and anyone who missed the show, missed a lot of love, caring and entertainment.

At the end of the show, the names were shot out like gunfire from a

COUNSELING CONCEPTS

THE CLOSET CATCHES UP

Imagine for a moment the shock you would go through finding out that they were a very sick person but had no one to call out to for help. Part of the support group is not there because one didn't cultivate those relationships. Parents cannot be told that one has AIDS, Hepatitis B, etc., because then they'd know you were Gay. "An Early Frost" which aired last Monday night on NBC brought home the message clearly. What a time to have to tell your parents that you're a Gay person when you may be dying of AIDS? They not only have to deal with their son's homosexuality but that they may lose him to this little known about disease called AIDS.

If you watched the movie, one thing that was brought out by the disservice he'd done to his parents by not telling them. In the movie, Mike's lover, Peter remarks to Mike's father what a surprise it is to find another part of Mike's life...ie... another part of Mike that he had never known before. The look given back to him by a bewildered father is one of, "You aren't just whistlin' Dixie." One of the questions put to Mike after the initial shock has worn off is: Why didn't you tell us before? Why shut us out of your life? Don't we mean anything to you? There is that feeling of being left out. True, they may not have been happy with his lifestyle, but he was their's and they cared.

So what about it? Are you cultivating relationships with parents so you can let them into your life and who you are. You do run the risk of losing those who mean a lot to you. That is a fact. Coming out of the closet is risky business. Let me ask this question: If they cannot take you as you are then, what kind of care, what kind of love can they have? That may be the hardest thing to take. When love is conditional on our performance then we have serious problems. I have written to my father for over a year without a response of any kind. Even though there is no response, I'm cultivating a relationship that may happen someday. He knows I'm here. I risked something of myself as I knew I had too. I was prepared for any consequence. A lot is expressed on this topic in a poem I ran into awhile back:

I have to live with myself and so I want to be fit for myself to know I want to be able as days go by always to look myself straight in the eye.

I don't want to stand with the setting sun and hate myself for the things I've done.

I want to go out with my head erect, I want to deserve every man's (person's) respect.

For here in the struggle for fame and self, I want to be able to like myself.

I don't want to look at myself and know that I am all show.

I can never hide myself from me.

I see what others may never see.

I know what others may never know.

I never can fool myself... so whatever happens

I want to be self-respecting and conscience free.

When everything is said and done, the cultivation of relationships is really the cultivation of ones self, of you being true to your own self. Cultivate you and you won't have to worry about the closet catching up.

CELEBRATING CHRIST IN THE GAY/LESBIAN COMMUNITY

A View From Within

by Christopher Geoffrey McPherson

LOVE: A HUMBLE STAB AT A DEFINITION

"IT IS THOUGHT A DISGRACE to love unrequited. But the great will see that true love cannot be unrequited. True love transcends the unworthy object and dwells and broods on the eternal, and when the poor interposed mask crumbles, it is not sad, but feels rid of so much earth and feels its independency the surer. Yet these things may hardly be said without a sort of treachery to the relation. The essence of friendship is entireness, a total magnanimity and trust. It must not surmise or provide for infirmity. It treats its object as a god, and it may deify both." --Ralph Waldo Emerson, from his essay Friendship.

I love thee purely, as they turn from praise.

I love thee with the passion put to use

In my old griefs, and with my childhood's faith.

I love thee with a love I seemed to lose

With my lost saints -- I love thee with the breath,

Smiles, tears, of all my life! -- and, if God choose,

I shall but love thee better after death."

--Elizabeth Barrett Browning, sonnet No. 43 from her Sonnets from the Portuguese.

"LOVE IS OUR EMOTIONAL RESPONSE to that which we value highly. It is the experience of joy in the existence of the loved object, joy in proximity, and joy in interaction or involvement. To love is to delight in the being whom one loves, to experience pleasure in that beings' presence, to find gratification or fulfillment in contact with that being. We experience the loved person as a source of fulfillment for profoundly important needs." --Nathaniel Brandon, from his book Honoring The Self.

"LOVE IS FRIENDSHIP THAT HAS CAUGHT FIRE. It is quiet understanding, mutual confidence, sharing and forgiving. It is loyalty through good and bad times. It settles for less than perfection and makes allowances for human weakness.

"Love is content with the present, it hopes for the future but doesn't brood over the past. It's the day-in and day-out chronicle of irritations, problems, compromises, small disappointments and big victories and working toward common goals.

"If you have love in your life, it can make up for a great many things you lack. If you don't have it, no matter what else there is, it's not enough." --Ann Landers, from her column of 03 August 1985.

"HOW DO I LOVE THEE? Let me count the ways.

I love thee to the depth and breadth and height

My soul can reach, when feeling out of sight

For ends of Being and ideal Grace

I love thee to the level of every day's

Most quiet need, by sun and candle-light.

I love thee freely, as men strive for right;

And, as an example of the effect love has on one person: --from the novel, News on the Homefront:

"Darling," he said. "I shall love you for as long as the diamond on this ring exists in this world. Wherever I am, I shall always have you by my side; for as long as I live, you will live within me. Until the sun itself turns cold, I shall love you, and even longer."

And, as an example of the effect a lost love has on one person: -- from the Sonnets: Translated from the Ancient Books of an Empty Heart, sonnet No. 1:

Morning is unmasked. The great heart of the Day arises and warms the dark alley.

Alone, again, am I, when my mind,

a Race from the scenario worlds away,

Joins here the cerulean hued light

Severing away the black of night.

Day Here, though a pleasure, reminds me how might

I survive a night again far away

From you. My dearest, where have you gone? Why

Have you left me? I cannot endure, nay,

I cannot survive. This day, unlike my

Other lonely days, stabs harder. I lie

Surrounded by your memory, and fear

Not; for I find my peace when with you there...

This column is dedicated to a dream which was once held in my hand, but which has faded away.
