

Jennifer Holliday to headline Gay Games II closing ceremonies August 17

Jennifer Holliday

SAN FRANCISCO, CA - Award-winning entertainer Jennifer Holliday will be the featured performer at the closing ceremonies of Gay Games II, Sunday, August 17. Ms. Holliday will be zapping off a week of athletic and cultural events in San Francisco (August 9-17) for the Gay and Lesbian community from across the country and around the world.

Jennifer Holliday first leaped to national prominence in her Tony award-winning performance in "Dreamgirls", one of the most successful shows on Broadway in recent years. Ms. Holliday also won a Grammy award for one of the singles released from "Dreamgirls". Most recently she has appeared in a national touring company of "Sing, Mahalia, Sing" packing houses all across the country.

The closing ceremonies for Gay Games II will be held at Kezar Stadium in Golden Gate Park and will include an array of Gay dancers, cloggers, singers and 500 members of the 15 Lesbian/Gay Bands of America. Over 20,000 spectators are expected to attend. The gates will open at 10:00 a.m. with warm-up festivities set to begin at noon. The closing ceremonies will run from 1:00 to 4:30 p.m.

The opening ceremonies on Saturday, August 9, also to be held at Kezar Stadium will feature Rita Mae Brown as Master of Ceremonies. The opening will be highlighted by the triumphant entry of over 3,500 Gay and Lesbian athletes from around the world. The actual final count of confirmed athletes will not be available immediately because of the crush of more than 2,000 entrants signing up in the last week before the June 1st deadline.

Use of personal computers has helped volunteers handle the tasks of logging entries, mailing confirmations and providing statistical reports to each committee in the organization. Volunteers are working around the clock to keep the entries moving through the registration process in the Games office. Shawn Kelly, Executive Director said, "We are very pleased that our efforts to reach the Gay community have paid off," noting that the Games are open to all athletes regardless of age or ability.

Event information is available by calling the Gay Games Ticket Hotline at (415) 861-5686. Opening and closing ceremony tickets are available through the BASS ticket agency (800) 225-2277 toll free from outside California. General admission seats are priced at $20 for one ceremony or $30 for both.

Additional information is available by calling the Gay Games office Monday through Friday during regular business hours at (415) 861-8282.

Supremes let Texas sodomy law stand

WASHINGTON, DC (AP) - The Supreme Court on Tuesday, July 7, let stand a Texas law making "deviate sexual intercourse" a crime turning aside arguments that the law violates the privacy rights of homosexuals.

The Justices, over one dissenting vote, rejected a

A View From Within

A COMMENTARY BY
CHRISTOPHER GEOFFREY McPHERSON

The Supreme Court and the sodomy ruling

It would be very easy to state simply that the date of June 30 will be entered into the history books as a date of great change within the Gay and Lesbian Civil Rights Movement. What will not be easy is the explanation why.

The Supreme Court ruled 5 to 4 to uphold a statute in the state of Georgia which says sodomy is illegal whether practiced by homosexuals or heterosexuals. In this ruling, the Justices have virtually given free reign to law enforcement officials to invade the privacy of consenting adults and to prosecute individuals who engage in sodomy which is defined as "unnatural, especially anal or oral, copulation, copulation of a human with an animal."

CBS Evening News Law Correspondent Fred Graham reported: "A case that began as a Gay Rights Crusade ended in a bitter Supreme Court division over society's right to legislate morality."

Writing the majority opinion, Justice Byron White said it is constitutional for legislatures to outlaw some private conduct solely because a majority of the people consider it immoral and unacceptable. Writing for the minority, Justice Harry Blackmun said the mere fact that certain conduct offends the majority cannot justify invading the homes, hearts and minds of citizens who choose to live their lives differently.

NBC affiliate KPNX-12 reported there was "no record of the (Georgia) law being applied to heterosexuals", while CBS Evening News ended with the comment that "as a practical matter, people are rarely prosecuted under the sodomy laws anyway because of the obvious problems of proof." So the importance of the decision is likely to be mostly psychological, representing a major defeat for homosexuals on the ultimate issue of Gay rights.

I beg to differ.

It was obvious to me during the entire day when I watched various news reports that many newscasters were missing at least part of a very big point, confusing the sexual acts of sodomy with the mental processes involved with being a homosexual.

Whether certain sexual practices are branded illegal or not, this will hardly stop me from being a homosexual. Homosexuality for me is defined by that certain mental need for another man's affection, not some purported physical need for whatever a man has that a woman does not.

Moreover, I think a lot of the newscasters presented the results, and apparent effects of this ruling, in a subjective and biased manner by immediately pointing the finger at homosexuals and saying this ruling adversely affects homosexuals, as if to say heterosexual men and women do not engage in "unnatural, especially anal or oral, copulation."

In Justice Blackmun's dissenting opinion, he further stated, "The Georgia law also applies to heterosexuals, single or married... Depriving individuals of the right to choose for themselves how to conduct their intimate relationships poses a far greater threat to the values most deeply rooted in our nation's history. I think the court today betrays those values."

What does this mean in the 25 states which now have similar sodomy laws? Laurence Tribe, of the Harvard Law School, who was involved with last year's Oklahoma teachers' case was quoted as saying, "If the privacy of the home, and the inner-sanctum of the bedroom is not secure from Big Brother, it's really hard to know where the power of government stops."

An extended worse-case scenario is frightening.

At this point it is unclear whether or not law enforcement officials will be enabled to invade the privacy of homosexuals and/or heterosexuals in order to arrest, charge, try and convict "guilty" persons. This ruling could remain a moot point if a search warrant and due process is required before law enforcement officials can investigate possible infractions of this ridiculous law. After all, one usually gets out of bed before answering the front door.

And this leads me nicely into the other point about the Court's ruling, that being the invasion of privacy, and the regulation of activities between consenting adults.

This whole difficulty with "homosexuality" and "sodomy" and the other mish-mash which came out with this ruling could be easily solved if an umbrella-law were enacted which said: "anything done in the privacy of a home, or bedroom, by two or more consenting adults is legal." (18 little words and our problems would be solved. Sigh.) This law could wipe away any fears about child-molestation (a minor -- someone not 18 years of age -- cannot legally give consent, therefore sex with a minor would be illegal); it would also do away with laws preventing homosexuals (and many heterosexuals) from engaging in any and all sexual activities because if two people consent to the act, what's the problem?

It is unfortunate that this ruling came down, because it proves how fully entrenched in "religious" thinking our country has become. The further our legal system sinks into the clutch of this thinking, the fewer and fewer civil rights Gay men and Lesbian women will have. Remember many years ago, in the age of Greeks and Romans, homosexuality was not even noticed as being "unnatural". In fact it was common, and accepted. Many "primitive" cultures -- such as those visited, and written about by anthropologist Margaret Mead -- have common, or ritualized homosexuality as part of their cultures. In some Scandinavian countries, (and in Wisconsin) homosexuality is protected, and accepted as routine.

Why then is America so backward?

It is sad that a country founded in order to escape religious persecution should be so influenced by "religious persecutors".

RALLY AGAINST CINCY COUNCILMAN

CINCINNATI, OH (AP) - A city councilman who was singled out for criticism by Gay rights activists at a weekend rally said Monday he sees no need to pass laws that legitimize homosexual lifestyles.

Councilman J. Kenneth Blackwell, who is also Cincinnati's vice mayor, responded to comments by Gay Rights leaders who said Blackwell is an enemy of homosexuals who seek the same rights as other citizens.

"My position has been, and continues to be, that I don't believe Gays should be singled out for persecution," Blackwell said. "Neither do I believe that their lifestyle should be given legitimacy over any other lifestyle, through passage of legislation."

Cincinnati Gay rights activists organized last Sunday's rally (July 6) to protest last week's U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding a Georgia law that makes it illegal for anyone, homosexual or heterosexual, to engage in sodomy.

The homosexual activists urged the rally crowd of 200 people gathered outside City Hall to work for the repeal of laws that make it a crime to commit sodomy. They criticized those laws as an attack on the privacy of homosexuals and heterosexuals.

"COPPERSTATE JAMBOREE" IN PHOENIX JULY 25-26-27

PHOENIX - "Copperstate Jamboree", the official Second Anniversary of the Copperstate Leathermen Association, will be celebrated on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 25, 26 and 27. The Jamboree was held in Tucson last year and this year Phoenix will be the host city.

The event is, as always, free and everyone is welcome.

Vacha interviewed several men and women in the Phoenix area, and a few other cities for his book; unfortunately his publisher decided that the book might cause difficulties if it included women interviewed by a man. Vacha is very pleasant, articulate and enthusiastic. Come enjoy him and share experiences. Call 956-6336 for more information.

STATE DENIES QUARANTINE PLANS FOR AIDS-EXPOSED

PHOENIX (AP) - State health officials say they have no plans to quarantine people who have been exposed to acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS, even though they may have the power to do so.

A newly formed group, the Arizona League Against Homophobia claims, in a widely distributed leaflet headlined "Quarantine, AIDS, and You" that the state Department of Health Services "is trying to adopt a regulation that would allow quarantine of anyone who tests positive" for the presence of AIDS antibodies.

"Hogwash," said Sherri Raymond, the department's press secretary.

And Dr. Steve Englander, head of the department's infectious-diseases division, said the group had misunderstood the rule.

The health department already has quarantine powers for infectious diseases such as tuberculosis in which a suspected carrier poses a hazard to the public and does not get treatment, Englander said. "Those powers are pretty broad and have been widely upheld," he added. But the cases that have surfaced in other states in which a suspected AIDS carrier refused treatment are the sort that police and courts could handle through criminal laws such as prostitution statutes rather than through civil health rules, he said.

"I can't imagine the situation in which we would become involved in that," he said.

The rules the state is trying to adopt would require doctors and others to report all those who test positive for the presence of antibodies to the AIDS virus.

LETTERS

DEAR EDITOR:
I've recently moved here to Tucson and have tried in vain to become a member of Tucson's various Leather and Levi clubs or other organizations. I have been either put off or ignored by these clubs, until recently. I found out that my past of being a female impersonator stood in the way of joining.

This recently changed as one of the clubs here extended an invitation to join them for a run. The Rose Canyon Run July 3-4-5-6. The run was fantastic! I got to know many men from all areas and have never had so much fun.

On Saturday, we found out that one of our fellow clubs was camped on the same mountain and invited them to a champagne cocktail party with hors d'oeuvres, linen and silver candelabra and a tuxedo'd drink server. Outrageously classy! The brotherhood and fellowship shown and given was wonderful. I wanted to share this and say thanks Tucson. I think I'll stay awhile.

European media editorials assail Supreme Court sodomy decision

By Larry Thornson

LONDON, ENGLAND (AP) - With the exception of Ireland, Western European countries have enacted no laws against homosexual acts, but few countries explicitly ban discrimination against homosexuals in such areas as jobs and housing.

In the past 25 years, several European nations repealed old laws forbidding homosexual relations. Among them Britain, West Germany, Norway and Spain. Most countries now permit any sexual act between consenting people in private. The age of consent ranges from 16 in Italy and Denmark to 21 in Britain.

French law forbids adults to engage in homosexual relations with anyone under the age of 18, but permits two people between the ages of 15 and 18 to have homosexual relations as long as both consent and there is no violence.

The U.S. Supreme Court's recent decision to uphold Georgia's law against sodomy (OBSERVER, July 2), prompted some scathing editorial comment in European newspapers.

Sweden's "Aftonbladet" linked the ruling with President Reagan's appointment of what the paper called "extreme right-wing judges" to the court.

"It is absurd to hold forth a United States ruled by conservatives as an example of freedom, when freedom does not exist in the most private of affairs," said the daily.

Sweden's Ministry of Social Affairs is drafting a bill expected to give homosexual live-in couples the same legal status as unmarried heterosexual couples, who have virtually the same rights as married couples.

An Associated Press sampling of Europe showed that only Switzerland and Norway explicitly ban discrimination against homosexuals. Denmark like Sweden is drafting legislation to protect homosexuals' rights in employment and housing.

Greek law permits homosexual relations, and authorities are general tolerant of homosexuality. Gay organizations in Athens publish two magazines, demonstrate in support of homosexual prostitutes and hold an annual transvestite beauty contest.

The deadly disease AIDS has hit Europe, provoking some outcry against homosexuality. But no country has taken legal steps restricting the behavior of homosexuals.

In 1967, Britain amended its Sexual Offenses Act to permit homosexual relations between consenting males in private. British law had never banned lesbian relations.

For centuries, until 1836, the death penalty was used to deter sodomy in Britain.

In Ireland, which on June 26 affirmed its adherence to Roman Catholic tenets by voting against divorce in a referendum, homosexual acts are prohibited under laws enacted in 1861 and 1865 during British rule. Convicted offenders could face a life sentence.

A book called "Out For Ourselves", published by the Dublin Lesbian and Gay Collective comments, "The laws have much wider parameters than they are rarely enforced. But they do provide a backdrop of oppression which affects the way we are treated in our daily lives by the authorities and individuals."

In July, the secretary of a homosexual group, who insisted on anonymity, said no specific laws exist there against homosexuality, and even in the Fascist period homosexuals were not prosecuted, though they were harassed.

Italian newspapers gave prominent coverage to the U.S. Supreme Court decision. The moderate "Il Messaggero" paper wrote, "Every state will have to determine what is barred in the bedroom. But who will enforce the law?"

The Netherlands has no legislation banning any sexual conduct in private except incest. In West Germany, homosexual relations have been legal since 1969, and the age of consent is 18.

Under Hitler, tens of thousands of homosexuals were sent to concentration camps and executed.

Switzerland sets different ages of consent, with 20 for homosexual relations and 16 for heterosexual relations. In General Francisco Franco's Spain, police could arrest anyone with a "homosexual appearance," with a two-year prison sentence the maximum penalty. The law was abrogated in 1977, two years after Franco's death.

"Here, at least in private, any sexual act is permitted," Justice Ministry spokesman Francisco Gor said in Madrid.

The leading Madrid daily "El Pais" called the Supreme Court's ruling "a brutal violation of individual's privacy."

In Belgium, the law does not ban homosexuality, but a case now before the courts has underscored an aversion to homosexuality in the predominantly Catholic country. A man cleared of a charge of running a house of ill repute, a Gay club, was convicted on appeal. The judge said if homosexuality were left without control, it would mean the extinction of the human race. The case is on appeal to Belgium's Supreme Court.

In Eastern Europe the legal situation varies. In the Soviet Union, homosexuality is punishable by up to eight years in prison. But a book called, "Pink Love Under a Red Star," published by an Austrian Gay rights organization, says Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Albania have no laws banning homosexuality between consenting adults.

Yugoslavia and Romania outlaw it, the book says.

Homosexuality is more discreetly practiced in the East bloc than in the West, possibly because police in Eastern Europe are generally less tolerant of non-conformity.

Majority of Americans disapprove survey shows

NEW YORK, NY (AP) - More Americans disapprove than approve of the U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding a Georgia law making sodomy between consenting adults a felony, (OBSERVER, July 2), according to a Newsweek poll.

But most of those questioned said they disapproved of homosexuality, the magazine reported Sunday.

Forty-seven percent of those surveyed disapproved of last week's ruling, 41 percent approved, and 12 percent had no opinion.

Middle-aged Americans were most upset with the ruling, with 54 percent against it, while those above the age of 50 were more accepting of the decision, with 48 percent disapproving.

Overall, however, 61 percent said they did not regard homosexuality as an accepted alternative lifestyle, while 32 percent said they did and 7 percent did not know.

The poll also said 57 percent of those surveyed did not believe the states should police private sexual practices between consenting homosexuals, while 74 percent said the states should not police heterosexuals' private sex practices.

The survey questioned 611 adults by telephone July 1 and 2. The poll's margin of error was plus or minus 5 percentage points.

WHAT'S UP DOC?

The place was the Graduate, the event was a benefit show and auction for S.O.S. From the moment the spotlight went on for the first number to until it was turned out after the final item was auctioned off, everyone in attendance had a fantastic evening. It seems everytime Tucson's Finest, Aviva Diamond, puts her touch on a show they are roaring successes. Aviva also being a member of S.O.S. really outdid herself this time.

A very special congratulations goes out from me to Candy Trowbridge. You stole the show in one hell of a beautiful job of Kate Smith. Keep up the good work because as far as I'm concerned, Aviva should have you in more of her shows.

In any show not everyone can be beautiful. This show had one spot that was a little green. What would you expect, she also tries to write for the paper.

Now one of the most popular on any stage is the Graduate's own Roxanne. Her performance again was flawless. Of course her little show outside the bar wasn't planned and now she is wearing a new plaster-of-paris high-heeled boot. Yes, poor Roxanne tripped outside and broke her foot. I was told she fell off her high heels, but I don't believe that.

Of course no show would be complete without one of Tucson's newest, funniest and very talented Candi Plastique. More on this little Jewel later.

Each one in the show was really great and the way the tips were coming in, the audience thought so also. Congratulations to each of you for a superb evening of entertainment.

After the show it was time for the auction. Auctioneer for the evening was Keith Morris (aka Cissy Goldberg). I've known Keith for a few years and I knew he could talk but I've never heard a tongue go so fast. I wonder if it works that fast at other times?

A lot of plants, a TV, pictures (one I wanted, thanks Peter), an original portrait by Gary Clark of Marilyn (sold for over $400), a ghetto blaster that ended up being sold twice and finally the complete drag outfit of Candy Plastique. Just selling the outfit was OK, but that Nelly Furbush just had to show her a-- and put the complete outfit on. That would have been OK but I understand she didn't have everything tucked in.

I could talk on and on about the evening but I'm sure other articles appear elsewhere in this issue of the paper. Read them also, and for those of you who weren't in attendance, you missed one this time that you shouldn't have.

One of the highlights of the evening was the unveiling of SOS' new colors. They are beautiful, designed by Dean (Ron and Dean). Stop by the Graduate and check out a very unique set of colors for S.O.S.

In closing, I want to just tell B. Mike, you and the entire S.O.S. gave everyone their money's worth, and I thank you and all the Sisters of Sonora.

TBBS: I hear a certain bar owner in Tucson is called the "Absentee Bar Owner.... Wayne was telling Penny at the bowling alley last week he was going to rub his head between Penny's boobs.... This week's endurance award goes to Ernie. Bert was out of town and Ernie spent the entire weekend with his family in Phoenix.... Bill N. was telling someone at the bar Monday, "My wife and I were just fine until you walked up". (What up Suzie?) ...Roxanne, try flats the next time.... You just cannot take TKD's VP and VL shopping at Value Village - I mean trying dresses on and all.

That's it for this week. I'll bring the club news up to date next week. Have a wonderful week.

NEWS FROM MCC/TUCSON

This coming Sunday, July 13th, will begin our series of special speakers for this month. At our 10:00 a.m. morning service, our guest will be the Reverend Kay Palin, who will be leading our worship service and will also be delivering the morning message. Reverend Palin is a graduate of Samaritan College in Los Angeles and was on the staff of MCC/Los Angeles at the same time as our own Assistant Pastor, Reverend Bernardo David. Reverend Kay Palin is now pastor of Oasis M.C.C. in Tempe.

At our Sunday evening service, July 13th, beginning at 8:30 p.m. our own Nita Terlisner-Willey will be leading our service. Nita is our Student Clergyperson and Pastor of M.C.C. Apostles of God in Sierra Vista.

Congratulations to the Sisters of Sonora on the benefit show that they gave at the Graduate last Saturday night. It was a show to be remembered for a long time. MCC/Tucson personally congratulates all of you in the show, behind the scenes and those "at large" who made the show such a success. However, we cannot congratulate that certain individual from TKD who tried to steal the show from all those "professionals" and ended up by making such a spectacle of himself. Spectacle: 1. That which is exhibited to public view especially something grand or showy. 2. An unwelcome or deplorable exhibition; a painful sight. Now Doc, you figure out which "spectacle" you were!

We are also sorry to learn that one of our members of MCC/Tucson who was in the show fell and broke his ankle and the top of his foot. Roxanne, when will you ever learn to wear high-heels? Get well soon, our prayers are with you.

Thought for the week: Religion should be a steering wheel, not a spare tire.

SUPREME COURT LETS TEXAS SODOMY LAW STAND ALSO

challenge to the law by a homosexual who said it is unconstitutional.

They also turned down appeals by Texas state and local law enforcement officials over procedural aspects of the law.

The court last week upheld a Georgia law making sodomy a crime, ruling that it did not violate any constitutional right.

The Texas law is similar to Georgia's. It defines deviate sexual intercourse as "any contact between any part of the genitals of one person and the mouth or anus of another person."

Donald F. Baker, who sued over the law, said it violates his right to engage in homosexual activities. He sought to have the law overturned even though he was not prosecuted for homosexual conduct.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the law last August. It said the ban on deviate sexual intercourse is justified by "the strong objection to homosexual conduct which has prevailed in Western culture for the past seven centuries."

The appeals court also rejected arguments by Texas prosecutors over who has the right to defend and challenge the state law in federal court.

Attorney General Jim Mattox, said his office has the exclusive power to represent the state's interest in such cases. District Attorney's in Texas said Baker had no legal standing to file his suit.

Justice Thurgood Marshall voted to hear arguments in the Texas case.

ARTHUR LE BLANK,

LANDSCAPING MADE SIMPLE - PART 2
FIRST BLOOD

For all you people out there who think I am just some cigarette smoking, drink sucking wimp - you've got another thing coming. I have been feeling inadequate lately, you know, that vague feeling that though you can get it up, you're not sure how high up is. Those sad times when you say to yourself "Gosh, I really don't want another drink." I mean, really starting to feel off your Wheaties and whatnot! Well, boys, I decided to do something about it.

Saturday began warm and breezy with a benevolent sun shining down. Hands-on experience beckoned me from without. I fortified myself with plenty of fresh ground coffee, not even with water, just straight out of the grinder. I eased my feet into some sturdy flip-flops and donned my extra heavy-duty cotton gardening gloves (the ones with the fetching spring floral pattern). I firmly grasped my lawn rake, opened the door to the backyard and tripped over the wheel barrow and fell into the storage shed. My forehead was grazed by the pitchfork and I felt a flow of blood coursing down my nose. Ineffectually wiping my bleeding brow, I thought, "Go for the gusto; you only go around once and you better have your cake and eat it, too!" and other such lofty thoughts. Extricating myself from the various lawn implements, I straightened my glasses and walked toward the flowerbed. I intended to rake the pine needles from the bed, place them in my red plastic lawn cart from Sears, and remove them to the dump outside the front gate. I remarked to myself that the rake seemed to be pulling up the little plants John had nurtured in the bed, but was sure he wouldn't notice, so continued my task.

After the cart was fully loaded, I wiped the dirt from my arms and went inside the house. Ice tea was the ticket, with just a dash of Bombay to take the sweetness off. Then to the dump with the plastic cart. I upended it in the gravel driveway and was forced to reload the pine needles into the cart (and to throw some into another flowerbed by the driveway - they just wouldn't all go back in!). At the dump I pushed all the debris into a neat pile which promptly toppled into the road. I bent to scoop it up and wrapped my hands around a giant prickly pear pad, sending 3 inch needles deep into my tender palms. This was right up there with torture by irate Asiatic types! Most of the needles came out when I removed the gloves; quite a few, however, remained painfully inserted into my bloody hands. Prunehood, our retarded cat, ignored my pained cries and seemed interested only in licking up the fresh blood that had fallen onto the tops of my feet (her tongue had a pleasant raspy feel which sent prickles up my back). I found a large adjustable wrench in the house and began to work on the needles - wrenches just don't adjust down enough pull cactus spines. I was forced to stand on the end of each spine and then quickly jerk my hand away, leaving unsightly hunks of flesh lying around the kitchen. Fortunately the cat seemed to think these were tasty little morsels. She wouldn't get any dinner that night.

I bent over the sink to reach the faucet and in doing so slipped on the bloody floor and fell, crushing the cat with my knees and knocking my head on the overhead cabinets. I awoke some minutes later with a pounding head and a vague memory of something awful happening. A glass of tea with plenty of ice and a largish dash of Bombay refreshed me greatly.

I stepped onto the back porch and noticed a fine specimen of avian paradise (bird of paradise) awaiting planting. I gingerly grabbed the unmoving cat by the tail, first holding a small mirror to her still lips to detect breathing. There was none, so I put her in my plastic cart from Sears with the plant, took shovel in hand and pushed the cart over to a flower bed. This was the one I had stripped earlier removing the pine needles (did I ever get them into a pile again?) and seemed a perfect place for my planting. I dug a neat hole about 3 feet deep and about 2 around, padded the bottom with forest mulch and carefully placed the cat in the hole. I said a few words for her (something like "Stupid ass jerk, you always were in the way!") and put a foot of dirt, mixed proportionately with mulch as John had taught me, on top. I then placed the plant in the dirt, filled the hole and tamped it solidly. My first planting, and it had really turned out well!

After briefly surveying my handiwork, I gathered the tools, loaded them in the plastic lawn cart, and pushed them into the storage room. I returned to the house for a shower and some more nice, cool ice tea. Maybe landscaping is something I should really pursue - what do you think?

OUT ON THE TOWN
STUNT MALIBU CHRISTI FAN CLUB NEWSLETTER

Stunt Malibu Christi visited Phoenix for the 4th to hang around with a few friends and introduce them to her brother, Drag Malibu Ken. It's rumored she and Ken form the percussion section of a band being formed in Phoenix called "Moist". It has also been rumored Macho Man has been asked to be a "Moist" member. Everyone knows he can be but will he? Also, a new franchise of Chew and Spew has just opened in West Phoenix called "Macho Mess" and it certainly is. Will it be a ringer?

Maybe a certain Tucson crew should stay home. Seems every time they visit Phoenix someone puts on a crash show for them, fireworks, sirens and all. This time they did a real bang-up job. The show was so convincing Ronda decided to play Wonder Woman and retrieve Crash Connie's keys from the carnage, while Macho Man and Miss Mae made up the cheering section for this mass mess of smoldering motors and mangled metal. If Ronda's not more careful around such a mass mess, she'll get her fur mingled again and this time it won't be from bleach.

Calm down Connie (not to be confused with Crash Connie). When's the last time someone whistled at you? Those who who's were just being too nice. Speaking of nice, - nice gun too. No wonder nobody ever whistles at Connie.

So, Tommie Tittle Twister has now teamed up with Jerrie. Tom and Jerrie, the Terrible Duo. They certainly are leaving their marks all over Phoenix and each other. They had better keep their green cards handy or they'll be shipped back to L.A.

So, the tubing trip in Phoenix was great. Weather warm, water cold, company fun and scenery fabulous! No wonder that softball team keeps going back. Wait til they get to San Francisco!

Maybe next time Miss Mae accepts a ride with Gator and Ator, she should offer to drive so her nails won't scrape the paint off the truck and Gator won't have to clean Mae's lipstick off the windshield with a shovel.

Well Madge, Ronda is still waiting for that chicken and white sauce. She'll settle for a chicken in white satin or for that matter, how about black leather? We know Ronda, she'll take her chicken any way she can get it, even plucked. But she really would rather do the plucking herself.

So Tottie finally decided to give up her sabbatical since now there's more of her. Where's a good Blanche when you need one, right Tottie?

Gay/Lesbian 'Card Shark' Game Gets Surprising Answers

During Lesbian/Gay Pride Week '86 in Tucson, one of the events that took place was a game called 'Card Sharks' which was presented in conjunction with 'Casino Night' at 1BT's. The producers of the game made a serious effort to put together a questionnaire containing 62 questions and personally took the list around the community until they had 100 responses, some of which were used in the 'Card Sharks' performance that night. There were many questions that they did not use. Most of the questions were provocative in nature and the answers were also quite revealing.

Although it is far from being a scientific survey of our community, the answers are thought to be an honest opinion from the participants. This survey is not to be confused with the demographic survey conducted by the OBSERVER during the past few weeks. Those results are now being computed and will be released shortly.

Through the courtesy of John Dang and Brett Buckus, producers, OBSERVER is happy to share these questions and their response from members of the Tucson community with you.
