Gay Groups Face Investigation Over Miller, Marlboro Boycott

DALLAS, TX (AP) - The Federal Election Commission is investigating several AIDS and Gay advocacy groups, including three from Texas, for possible election code violations in their boycott of Miller brand beer and Marlboro cigarettes.

The Conservative Campaign Fund filed the complaint in Washington last week against five groups because of their involvement in a boycott of Miller and Marlboro.

The boycott was initiated earlier this summer in response to contributions from a Philip Morris company's political action committee to the re-election campaign of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-NC.

Philip Morris, which has donated funds to a museum named after Helms, manufactures Miller beer and Marlboro cigarettes. (OBSERVER, JUne 13). Helms frequently votes against Gay rights and AIDS legislation.

The complaint targets the Dallas Gay Alliance, Dallas Tavern Guild, Tarrant County Gay Alliance and the San Francisco and Washington, DC chapters of the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power. Officials of the two ACT-UP chapters were also named in the complaint filed by the PAC.

Peter T. Flaherty, chairman of the Conservative Campaign Fund, said he believes the groups are acting like PACs without having filed the papers to legally collect funds for a Senate race.

"There appears to be a major effort by militant homosexual groups around the country to illegally interfere in the North Carolina Senate race," Flaherty said.

"I don't object to them exercising their First Amendment rights, but when they try to go out and defeat Jesse Helms, then they are subject to federal laws.

The groups named in the complaint will seek legal advice before responding, said Bruce Monroe, president of the Dallas Gay Alliance.

"It is a very serious matter when someone tries to abridge your freedom of speech," Monroe said. "They are trying to divert our attention away from the boycott. It must be having an effect or they wouldn't be worried about it."

The FEC said that violations of the code could carry fines up to $10,000.

Panel Asks Faster Use Of Experimental Medicine

WASHINGTON, DC (AP) - President Bush's advisory panel on the treatment of cancer and AIDS proposed major changes last week in government testing of experimental drugs to speed them to patients "for whom time is running out".

For patients who are not helped by approved and readily available medicines, "still unproved therapies may represent their only hope," the panel said in its final report.

For patients who resist all available therapies, "new treatments on the cutting edge of science may represent the best standard of care," it said.

The President's Cancer Panel, chaired by industrialist Armand Hammer, a physician by training, concluded that patients are willing to accept the risks associated with new and untried therapies.

But it said they can become more widely available only if the Food and Drug Administration, the agency charged with approving and regulating medical therapies "can be allowed and is willing to become more flexible in implementing such innovations" for patients "for whom time is running out".

Activist groups representing AIDS and cancer patients also have called for expediting and expanding use of experimental treatments.

The panel made these recommendations and findings:

 The Secretary of Health and human services should establish a permanent policy and oversight committee to monitor the FDA's regulation and approval of drugs and biologic therapies for human use.

 Expedited approval of cancer and AIDS drugs could result if the FDA relied more frequently on the opinion of qualified experts serving on agency advisory committees.

 The FDA should consider modifying its current criteria for approval of new drug applications. The present standard, proof of improved survival, might well be changed to include complete or partial positive responses in patients whose cancers have resisted all current therapies.

The panel said drugs that produce tumor regression in more than 20 percent or 30 percent of patients in approval trials should be approved for marketing.

 Congress should give prompt attention to the FDA's inadequate resources, staff and facilities.

 FDA studies designed to determine if a drug under investigation is superior to that of a prescription drug may no longer be required for that drug to receive market approval.

 The FDA's advisory committee system for human prescription drugs should be fundamentally restructured, with panels permitted to bypass intermediate levels and report directly to the FDA commissioner. The panels should have an independent staff and control their own agendas and priorities.

The panel also recommended that companies sponsoring experimental drugs have the option of paying the FDA for outside review of the applications by qualified and unbiased experts in order to resolve the FDA's problem of increasing responsibilities and a decreasing staff.

Medicare, Medicaid and private insurers should give

Man Dies Hours After Having Blood Heated To Kill AIDS Virus, Mexican Clinic Fined

ATLANTA, GA - An Atlanta doctor who performed an experimental treatment on an AIDS patient who died in Mexico City says the man's death was not a surprise, but the Mexico City Health Department has fined the clinic for allowing the doctor to perform the experiment. It also asked for an investigation into who was responsible for permitting the treatment, a department news release said.

The man died last week, 18 hours after the procedure, his New York physician reported. The man, Vladimir K. Arlich, was the third person with AIDS to undergo the controversial therapy. The procedure was performed in Mexico City by Dr. Kenneth Alonso, one of two Atlanta doctors who are testing the blood-heating treatment, known as hyperthermia, in AIDS patients.

One patient, Atlanta waiter Carl Crawford, who underwent the treatment in May, claims he was cured of AIDS. Doctors said the second patient, a Chicago man identified only as Tony, has shown little improvement.

Alonso said he agreed to take the New York man's case as a favor to the man's doctor in New York, even though the 48-year-old patient was virtually near death. The New York doctor announced the death.

Alonso told Atlanta-based Cable News Network (CNN) that the death of the man came as no surprise. "What concerns me," he said, "is that people are expecting miracles. We are not offering miracles."

Alonso moved his experiment to Mexico City last month after Georgia health officials acted to close the hospital where the procedure was first performed. Alonso has said he hopes to try the treatment on as many as 10 patients in Mexico.

But in a telephone interview, Alonsos's associate, Joseph Guzman, said Mexican officials are trying to stop him from performing any more treatments.

The Clinica Londres was fined the equivalent of $1,700 for violating laws on human experimentation. The doctors who helped in the treatment were fined a similar amount, the department said. The news release said that Arlich's body was returned to the United States before an autopsy could be performed.

The treatment, known as whole body hyperthermia, is a method of controlling Kaposi's sarcoma, a cancer that frequently complicates AIDS patients.

Frederico Chavez Peon, director of the Mexican Government's National Council for AIDS Prevention and Control, has called for an investigation into the procedure in the United States.

Federal Judge Blocks Law Restricting Adult Phone Services

NEW YORK, NY - A federal judge in New York, Monday, Aug. 13, ordered the government not to enforce an unconstitutional law aimed at significantly restricting "adult" information telephone services, so-called "phone-sex" and chat lines.

Ruling in a lawsuit brought against the Department of Justice by adult information providers joined by Lambda Legal Defense & Education Fund and the New York Civil Liberties Union, the judge found that the law violated the First and Fifth

SYMINGTON LEADS IN CANDIDATE POLLS

PHOENIX - The Behavior Research Center's Rocky Mountain Poll for August shows 32 percent of Maricopa County's Republican voters are undecided on a gubernatorial candidate; 30 percent favor Fife Symington; 15 percent Sam Steiger; 14 percent Evan Mecham; 6 percent Fred Koory and 3 percent Bob Barnes.

The random survey of 350 registered Republicans has a margin of error of plus or minus 5.3 percent.

LIGHT THERAPY SHINES

PHILADELPHIA, PA (AP) - Symptoms of AIDS-related complex disappeared in five patients after their blood was treated with a form of light therapy, doctors reported last week.

Two of the patients appeared to be free of the AIDS virus after the treatment. A patient who had been barely able to walk up a flight of stairs can now jog 3 1/2 miles a day, the researchers said in the Annals of Internal Medicine.

But other scientists urged caution because of the study's preliminary results. An editorial accompanying the report said the study of five ARC patients had shortcomings that limit interpretation of results.

identical coverage for experimental drugs and all related medical care for AIDS and cancer patients, the committee said.

"We endorse the development of community-based clinical trials that permit widespread access to investigational drugs without sacrificing statistical analysis of drug effectiveness and thus that can lead to early regulatory approval," the panel said.

Hammer said he hoped the report would prove useful in improving the federal drug review process "and in reducing delays in marketing new drugs, thus benefiting cancer and AIDS patients throughout the country."

The study was initiated in June 1988 at the request of Bush, then serving as vice president.

Comedian to Entertain at Shanti Benefit Sunday, September 6

DANNY WILLIAMS

TUCSON - Another big benefit is scheduled for the Shanti Foundation/Tucson. Comedian Danny Williams will headline the benefit which is being held at the French Quarter on Saturday, Sept. 8. Williams who has been on national tour has been reviewed as "The Gay Community's Premier Comedian" by the San Francisco Examiner. "Devastating, perceptive and just plain funny... rich, ripe and right on stuff," said Philip Elwood, Examiner critic.

Williams first became known in entertainment circles when he released his hit record, "Castro Boys" which was a Gay version of "Valley Girls". He began performing his stand-up comedy in 1982 at the Valencia Rose in San Francisco. Since that time he has entertained audiences throughout the nation.

Danny is the recipient of the 1990 San Francisco Gay Community Award for Male Entertainer of the Year, an award he has won for the last four years. He has won many other awards for his entertaining talents. In 1989 the Bay Area Council on Entertainment honored him with the John L. Wasserman Award in recognition of the community service he provides as an entertainer.

Danny's comedy is deeply personal, while at the same time it touches upon feelings common to all. Whether he's talking about going to bars, ("I'm short, and a short person in a crowded bar looks like a place to stand", "A little hole that travels around the bar"; having a lover, "We've been together nine years - nine consecutive years!; or the Gay olympics, "I signed up for two of the events: Coffee table decoration and sarcasm".

Danny has the ability to make people laugh and feel good about themselves. And no one is quicker with an ad-lib than Danny. No wonder the Bay Area Reporter called him "The funniest comic in town, Gay, straight or otherwise".

Tickets for the September 8 benefit are $5.00 with all proceeds going to Shanti Foundation, Tucson. Tickets are available now and may be purchased at the French Quarter or at the Shanti Office, 602 N. 4th Avenue or through any member of the Shanti family.

Partners Law Passed in Laguna Beach

LAGUNA BEACH, CA - A new law in Laguna Beach, makes unmarried partners of city employees, which includes Gays and Lesbians, eligible for medical and dental coverage previously available only to spouses.

The policy was approved unanimously by the City Council on Wednesday, Aug. 15.

Laguna Beach joins Berkeley, West Hollywood and Santa Cruz in California and Seattle, Washington in adopting so-called domestic partner laws. Los Angeles recently extended its employee leave program to include domestic partners.

Local Gay rights advocates, who consider the new policy a victory for both Gay and unmarried heterosexual couples, praised the city's action.

"It's good news," said Anaheim attorney John Doran. "We believe both local and state governments have to realize that family units include Lesbian and Gay couples, unmarried heterosexual couples, single parents with children."

The law was authorized by Laguna Beach councilman Robert Gentry, who is Gay.

A SPECIAL THANK YOU TO MY FRIENDS AND TO TUCSON:

As you may have read, my lover Rocky D. Roberts passed away July 30, 1990 here in Tucson of AIDS.

I would like to take this time to say thank you to a few people. First of all to his sister Bonny and her lover, Sharon, who were always there for me and him. Thanks for the love, the strength and the will power to deal with all that we have gone through. Rocky loved you both so very much and I will always love and respect you.

To Parker, our long-term friend who moved with us here. Thanks for the trips to the doctor when I couldn't take Rocky, and for the understanding of what I was going through.

To Jim, Rocky's support friend. Thanks for giving Rocky a hug and shoulder when I wasn't there; and for all that you do for everyone.

To our new special friend, Arnold. Thanks for so many things from rides to support, to a place to stay. To Bill and Dave with a heart of gold. Thanks for getting me to Rocky's burial where I could really say goodbye. To Doctor Tom, thanks for being a true friend in all ways.

And now to all our friends and the community of Tucson. Thanks for the smiles, the tears and the open arms. I truly hope and pray that one day we will not have to go through this anymore.

To Rocky, I love you. May you rest in peace.

OBSERVER EDITOR -

I would like to congratulate Christopher Geoffrey McPherson on reaching the "thirty something" age group. I hope the decade is full of a lot more than stylish clothes (international news) and a magnificent career.

Thank you for the wonderful commentaries you provide in the Weekly Observer and much success in the future.

Ask Cosmic Mama . . .

I would like to apologize for the error I made in my last column. It should have said "BLACK ELK'S GREAT VISION".

I would like to help you and all of the "GREAT SPIRIT'S" children to better understand the earth and its relationship to all living things in the universe, and this wonderful planet we live on. We all must work together to help her go through her clean-up process.

You may all feel a deep seated need to be closer to nature and all her elemental forces. I believe that I can help you to better understand the relationship we have with the universe and to help you to understand why the Native Americans cherish it so much. When you yourself can learn to become one with all things, then you truly become part of the whole of things all around you.

We can know how to acknowledge and be joyful of the circles of our own lives, so that we are able to follow the flow of changes of energies that come with the different ages. Knowing and flowing with the great circle of life will help us not to fall out of the great circle and fall out of rhythm with life. To fall out of the circle of life is to stop growing.

Thank you, Lots of life,

Gay Games Opening Second in Size Only to the Olympics

VANCOUVER, BC (AP) - A parade of athletes second in size only to the Olympic Games marched through Vancouver's Place stadium to open the third Gay Games Celebration '90.

Wearing rainbow colors, Team San Francisco led off the hour-long parade of Gay and Lesbian athletes.

About 12,000 spectators in the domed stadium, which holds about 50,000 people cheered wildly as each team marched onto the football field.

Burnaby MP Svend Robinson, the first Canadian member of the Parliament to declare publicly that he is Gay, also received a standing ovation.

The games, featuring about 7,100 athletes from 27 countries, are the first to be held outside San Francisco.

The vocal crowd gave the loudest welcome to Team Canada, which entered to the music of Anne Murray's hit, "Snowbird".

No major protests marked the opening of the games, despite earlier condemnation of the games and homosexuality by some Christian groups.

Two men and a woman shouted anti-Gay messages through a loudspeaker outside one stadium gate and another woman paraded back and forth wearing a sign with anti-games slogans.

The ceremonies also featured a performance by the 200-member Festival Chorus, a tribute to those who have died of AIDS, the Rainbow Flag presentation by runner Brent Nicholson Earle and the arrival of the torch.

Participation in the games was open to anyone regardless of age, ability, gender or sexual orientation. Whenever possible, women and men competed together.

About 65 percent of all entrants were from the United States, with Team Seattle and Team San Francisco sending about 1,000 athletes each. There were also athletes from Australia, New Zealand and East Germany among other foreign countries.

The games had a $1.25 million (Canadian) budget with money coming from corporate sponsors, registrations, admissions and other fund-raising events.

The games were first held in San Francisco where 1,300 athletes took part in Challenge '82. Four years later, some 3,500 people participated in Triumph '86 in San Francisco.

"What a wonderfully diverse group of men and women they are," Robinson said of the Vancouver organizers during the opening ceremonies for Celebration '90.

"Many coming out for the first time as they volunteer, reflecting the rainbow of our community including the drag queens, the bull dykes and men in leather and the radical faeries, all working together in common cause," he said to loud applause.

Thirty sporting events ranging from track and field and bowling to hockey and body building were held at various facilities throughout the Vancouver area.

[ED NOTE: So far no official word from the officials of Gay Games III has been received concerning the winners of the various events. As soon as such confirmation is received, it will be published.]

Partners Law Passed In Laguna Beach

that the American family is changing and the city of Laguna Beach is responding to that change," Gentry said.

To gain eligibility under the new policy, an unmarried couple must sign an affidavit stating they have lived together for at least six months, and intend to live together indefinitely. The affidavit must also declare that the couple is not related by blood, that both partners are mentally competent and will notify the city if circumstances of the relationship change.

U.S. Rep. William Dannemeyer, a Republican from Fullerton, denounced the new law. "The traditional family in American society is one man and one woman in an institution called marriage, that is the basis of civilization," said Dannemeyer.

The Rev. Louis Sheldon, head of the Orange County-based Traditional Values Coalition, said he had received "a lot of phone calls" from Laguna Beach residents angered by the council's action.

"It is truly a biased-related policy to advocate and promote the homosexual lifestyle," Sheldon said.

Laguna Beach personnel director Philip Hoffman said the city had not evaluated what impact the policy might have in treating patients who contract the AIDS virus or whether extension of medical benefits to Gay partners might result in higher medical costs for the city.

"I don't think this policy will have an effect on the delivery of health care to AIDS patients," said Gentry. "In some ways this could save the city money. If two employees in a domestic relationship would now be covered as a family, it would be less costly."

Ad Campaign Irks Art Supporters

FLAGSTAFF, AZ (AP) - A Der Wienerschnitzel campaign designed to sell soft drinks has patrons of the arts up in arms. The chain began supplying restaurants with 32-ounce plastic cups for patrons who bought oversize drinks. On the cups was the question: "If a Wienerdude heading for the ballet in Chicago leaves L.A. traveling at eighty miles an hour, how long will it take him to travel the 2,125 miles?"

The answer, "Why would a Wienerdude drive all that way just to watch a bunch of wuss dancers?" The cup makes light of the fine arts, said Margaret Roush-Meier, a member of the local Save Music and Arts Committee.

Tom Amberger, national marketing director for the California-based company, said the headquarters had received complaints from elsewhere and had stopped producing the cups. "It wasn't intended to be malicious."

Gay-Themed Ads Not Good enough?

The Green Bay Press-Gazette, a newspaper in Wisconsin, in 1986 refused to accept two classified ads for Gay- and Lesbian-themed issues.

The newspaper (part of the Gannett chain) was sued for violating the state's anti-discrimination in public accommodations act.

In brief, the public accommodations act says discrimination is illegal by any public entity such as, but not limited to, places of business or recreation, hotels, motels, restaurants, nursing homes, hospitals, cemeteries, etc.

A ruling recently handed down by the Third District Court of Appeals indicated that newspapers were not public accommodations, and did not fall under Wisconsin's anti-discrimination provisions.

In its opinion, the court said: "We also do not wish... to imply that we endorse Gannett's decision not to run the ads... Refusal to print the ads is not a violation of the... act, [but] the wisdom of a policy that refuses to accept an ad designed to offer medical and other assistance to those engaged in an alternative lifestyle is not within our power to review."

The case will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

It must be remembered that the function of the judicial system is to interpret the meaning of laws--not create new avenues of enforcement within existing laws.

Clearly, the Appeals Court thought negatively about the policy to refuse the ads, but the law under which the suit was brought just did not apply to newspapers.

The Gannett company--which has long been recognized as a leader in affirmative action and employment of minorities -- is here tarnished by this unfortunate incident.

CAPSULE COLUMN ONE: "The Two Jakes", Paramount's sequel to the stunning 1973 film "Chinatown", is a disappointing follow-up to the story of Jake Gittes.

As played by the film's director Jack Nicholson, Jake Gittes is, once again, a smooth snake worthy of the 1940s Warner Brothers film noir-styled films.

"Jakes" itself is a fascinating look at corruption and deceit --just as "Chinatown" was. But this entry lacks a certain spark, a certain level of electricity which permeated the first.

Although belabored, the film is exciting to watch delightful to experience, and still worth seeing.

* * * * * *

CAPSULE COLUMN TWO: Another film about AIDS is in the works. Premiere magazine reports the untitled film will be directed by John Schlesinger ("Midnight Cowboy") and written by David Leavitt.

Although details of the script are not available, Leavitt says the film will look at "people living with AIDS, as opposed to people dying of AIDS."

In this column, I am endorsing candidates for certain offices, or in other words, telling you all how I plan to vote in certain races.

GOVERNOR

On September 11th, I will go to the polls, and cast my vote for Phoenix Mayor Terry Goddard for governor in the Primary Election. Terry is an intelligent man who will address the issues facing Arizona, with fresh new approach. Terry has a proven track record, as Mayor of Phoenix, of economic growth, citizen participation and good government record.

Associated Press

Terry Goddard

Terry is a strong friend to the Lesbian and Gay community, with his track record, and the fact that in his two campaigns, he went to the Phoenix Gay bars to campaign, and went to the events sponsored by the Arizona Committee for Progress. Goddard strongly believes in the planks which the Lambda Democratic Caucus put into the state platform.

Dave Moss, on the other hand, has run for every office conceivable, and has lost. Moss does not have a solid plan for economic development for the state. I do not consider Moss a credible candidate.

Goddard is a man of vision, a man with the guts to lead the state out of the quagmire that the Republican Legislature has gotten us into. Terry Goddard will give this state a fresh start. He will implement dynamic new ideas for state government. The state will rise out of the economic mess with Goddard as our next governor.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

Sept. 11, I will cast my vote for Dick Segal for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General. Dick is a man with compassion, and a strong knowledge of the law. Dick serves as a Judge-Pro Tem in the Maricopa County Superior Court. Dick has served as President of the Arizona Bar Association. He strongly believes in human rights, and has been campaigning for the Lesbian and Gay vote in Phoenix and Tucson.

I feel that we do not need a "strong prosecutor" for an Attorney General. We need a persons with intelligence, compassion and experience in the court room, not just as a prosecutor. Dick Segal is that person.

LEGISLATIVE DISTRICTS
HOUSE AND SENATE

There are three valuable assets in the State Legislature. They are Representatives John Kromko, Peter Goudinoff and State Senator Jaime Gutierrez. The three have primary challengers who happen to be anti-choice and anti-Gay. On September 11, I urge you to cast your votes for Jaime Gutierrez, John Kromko and Peter Goudinoff. They have been longtime friends of the Gay and Lesbian community, and have been a voice for us in the Republican legislature.

These are just a few races that I will cast a vote for, or would if I lived in the district where the Legislative candidates are running. In future columns I will cover the other races.

Until next time, take care.

Bit Of The Old South

by Sean Thomas

It's been another great week in the Old Pueblo. I wish I could say the same for our poor people in the Middle East. One way to show Kuwait your support is to show their flag along with our own stars and stripes. Just imagine what it must be like for those poor people over there. It would be as if someone invaded Southern Arizona, busted down your door, held you at gunpoint, took what they wanted from your home, trashed the rest, possibly physically hurt your loved ones, even rape, not knowing if they are going to kill you at any second on a whim. It's hard to imagine, isn't it?

I hope you all had a chance to read the "Unfriendly Middle East" last week in the OBSERVER. Another installment is forthcoming next week. This one will be about Taj and Rajid, two Lesbians who got caught breaking their cruel and stupid sex laws in Iraq. Their punishment was inhumane.

And happy news next week will be forthcoming in this column too. Happy birthday to John Hollomon on the 27th of this month. A great friend and roommate.

Upcoming columns will be TAP's financial statement finally! Gay and Lesbian homeless and faith and sexuality.

Till next week, Sean 323-3780.

News From MCC/Tucson
by Ben Carlile

It has often been asked why a Christian Church such as the Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community Churches follows the teachings of a Hebrew - Jesus of Nazareth. The Christian religion being in total opposition to the Jewish Religion, but yet having the same origin, can be confusing.

Jesus was the Messiah prophesied by all of the prophets in the Old Testament and yet the Jewish religion would not accept Jesus as the Messiah. Not until in the Book of Acts, Chapter 1, Verse 8, did Christianity, through a direct command of Jesus Christ, extend and expand to all who would believe.

Acts was written by Luke approximately AD 65-70 and is a continuation of the Gospel of Luke. Acts was written to show the expansion of the gospel from Jewish to Gentile territory. The good news that Jesus died and rose again could not be confined to one part of the world, but was intended by God for every one. To that end, God empowered the Apostles through the empowering agent, the Holy Spirit, to bring Christianity to everyone who would believe that Jesus of Nazareth was the Christ, the Messiah promised by God.

The U.F.M.C.C. believes and teaches that Jesus is God manifested to everyone, not just a select few. To be manifested is to be revealed, displayed or to be shown as apparent to sight or understanding. To our understanding through the Bible, we have no choice but to accept Jesus Christ - God - as our Lord and Saviour and to follow His teachings.

This Saturday, Aug. 25, starting at 6:30 p.m., MCC/Tucson will have their monthly Bingo games at 560 S. Stone. Cash prizes will be given to the winners of each game. The final game of "Cover All" will pay $40 to the winner. If there are more than one winner in any game, the prize will be equally divided. Bingo cards are printed with three cards to a sheet, each sheet is fifty cents. Refreshments will be offered during the evening.

amendments and was unconstitutionally vague.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert P. Patterson, Jr., held that the federal law, which imposed a number of restrictions on adult service providers as well as telephone carriers, unduly burdened people's right to speak freely over the phones, and the right of companies to provide the services without such restrictions as prepayment, credit cards, or pre-subscription.

The law would have come into effect on Aug. 15, and, among other things, would have required people seeking to use the phone lines to "pre-subscribe" by first sending a note to the phone company asking to receive the services.

In a friend-of-the-court brief joined by the NYCLU, Lambda had urged the court to reject the law as unnecessarily oppressive, pointing out that customers already have the option of blocking unwanted services for free, simply by calling the local business office of the phone company. In a 48-page opinion, the court found that New York's present system of "voluntary blocking" sufficiently protects minors and others not wishing to receive the services.

Civil libertarians were quick to applaud the court's ruling, including its rejections of the law's curbs on so-called "indecent speech" as constitutionally vague. Lambda staff attorney Evan Wolfson, who worked on the case said, "This law would make it a crime for adults to say on the telephone what they are free to say on the street."

"The judge's ruling says loud and clear that under the First Amendment, we, not the government, not the phone company, get to decide whom we talk to and about what," Wolfson said. He also cited the importance of chat lines and adult telephone services to many Gay men and Lesbians as means of expression and association, and as tools in the fight for safer sex and AIDS education and prevention.

The decision in American Information Enterprises v. Thornburgh marked the second time a federal judge had acted to stop the law from taking effect. Previously, a court in California issued a similar ruling against the law, sponsored in Congress by Senator Jesse Helms (R-NC). The U.S. Supreme Court struck down a similar law last year.

The information providers were represented by Joel Dichter of the New York firm of Seham, Klein & Zelman. The Village Voice Publishing Company also joined the friend-of-the-court brief on behalf of the information providers.

What's Up Doc ???

TKO's annual excursion over to the City of Rocks will live in the memories of 14 people for many years, if for nothing else but the drive over and back. Driving over, 10 miles out of Deming, NM, the wheel flew off the trailer, thus a 5-hour delay. On the return trip, a heater hose broke 3 miles outside of Wilcox, end result, everyone had to stay overnight.

That evening's sleeping arrangements was by no means comfortable, with 4 people at the dining room table, people sleeping outside in the parking lot, in the aisle of the RV, one each in the driver's and co-pilot's seat, two on the bed itself, and one stretched across two chairs with a beer cooler in between. Thank goodness for the Burger King next door - we at least had coffee in the morning. That was not how I wanted to see the Wilcox Days!

Even after we thought the RV was fixed and were finally leaving on the road toward home again, more problems. After leaving the City of Rocks at 2 p.m. Sunday, everyone finally arrived home on Monday at 1:00 p.m. Yes, this was one trip no one will forget for a long time.

As for the run itself, it was, as always, fantastic! I'll not even attempt to pass on all the gossip and other juicy tid-bits I overheard or saw, but a couple - no way can I pass up not passing them on to you.

A new family tree was formed starting Saturday evening when Bert called Gary L. 'Daddy'. Then Saturday afternoon, after some guy in one of the Deming bars tried to pick up Gary L., and when he failed he started on Pam. When the guy refused to accept Pam's refusal, she pointed to Bert and said, "That's my husband". If this is the case, this means Kip is now a 'Mother-In-Law'!

In the true spirit of being a mother-in-law, Kip was telling everyone she does not worry about getting grey hair, she just goes out and buys another wig. Also, being a mother-in-law (and everyone knows how bossy they can be at times), she passed on a new name over the weekend: "Muddy Crystal", aka Gary T.

Gary L. on the other hand really wanted everyone to know he was the BOSS, DADDY, he bought himself a Master t-shirt and a Slave one for Kip. Why did Gary get sick that evening?

The first marriage (Pam's), was a very short one because once arriving back at the camp grounds, Pam divorced Bert and married Tommy M (with another boy friend-Gary T.). Of course, Friday night's floor show put on by Pam, witnessed by Bert, Kip and Gary, everyone knew no marriage made under these circumstances will ever last. You sit down and try to draw this family tree up. It would probably end up looking like a Yucca plant.

During the first marriage, I was asking Bert, with this marriage, what does that make Ernie, the 'B------'? Of course when your club gives you a title of 'God Emperor' why shouldn't you be allowed to have not only a female wife, but also a male wife?

You are now probably wondering if Pam received a Trash Award from this run. Well, this run did not have a Trash Award, but they did pass out one called Sadie's c??? award, and yes, Pam won it.

Of course TKO also has and award, "The Saturday Morning Beauty Award", with this year's winner - Bert. He was not, appearance wise, that bad when he got out of his tent Sunday morning, but he now has teeth marks on his rear, his own teeth put them there. I'd say that is real talent. I'll not pass on an explanation of this one, but just ask him.

Of course, there were a lot more juicy items during this weekend, some of which I was threatened with my life if I passed on, but whenever TKO is around just listen. Besides, it would take almost 2 full pages to pass everything on that I witnessed and overheard. I wanted to enjoy myself also and not just sit around taking notes. Some I do have stored for later usage.

Those of us who know Sadie, from HDS, knows the City of Rocks is her time for modeling new clothes. This year was no exception and the outfits, that is, what there was of them, were taken from a Show and Tell show, but tasteful. The only thing she said she needed was her black clutch purse.

Hijos del Sol was this year's host club but after an unfortunate robbery (Sadie's car) all the plans for this year's City of Rocks run were gone. Instead, to carry on and improvise, thus plan Z. Their theme was 'Think 9 Mary', which TKO thought was wrapped around the Christmas season.

TKO went prepared with trees, presents, and even Mr. & Mrs. Santa Claus (Gary T. and Keith). Boy, were they off base, HDS' theme was wrapped around a Polynesian setting, with a volcano and throwing the virgin (in this crew?) into it. After the robbery, the only thing that was left were the leis and beads.

TKO, thinking the theme was Christmas, put a show on Saturday evening with a visit from the Star of David, the Three Wise Ladies, and a special guest, Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus. Santa took his seat and one by one, guests were invited to sit on his slap and make a wish, (Oh! to be a fly on his shoulder!) after which Santa gave each a gift, a hand painted tasteful rock.

After this it was party time and party everyone did. Then, slowly, one by one (sometimes two by two) drifted off to bed for some needed rest.

Sunday is time for the presentations of all the awards. Since HDS was running on plan Z, there was not 1st, 2nd or 3rd. Winners were, of the red trophy, Tommy M.; Winner of the White Trophy was Betty (Phil's mother) and winner of the Black Trophy was Ed. C. Then

A View From The Rock

A Commentary From Cornerstone Fellowship

Anger may come and go, but bitter feelings can often remain for years. Sometimes a situation that happened many years ago, but never resolved can cause bitterness to grow and spread like a weed, entangling our attitudes, feelings and thoughts.

We all have a strong need to be loved and to feel worthwhile, not only to ourselves, but too those around us. If we feel this need is not being met, we tend to feel robbed or cheated of something that we intuitively know should be ours. This can cause seeds of anger to germinate into weeds of bitterness.

Often, we are emotionally abused by conditional love and acceptance from our parents, friends and significant others. We are torn apart by a love that is not secure, one that comes with strings attached. In contrast, the love of Christ is a gift; it is unconditional like the sunlight. We can't do anything to lessen or intensify the sun's power; we can only bask in its warmth.

Sometimes we become bitter because of a personal loss that we believe to be intolerable or impossible to accept, like the loss of a job, our health, self-respect, or a loved one. Bitterness begins to act like an acid or a cancer eating away at our emotional, physical and spiritual health. This bitterness, if left unchecked, can destroy our relationships with others. This is because, when we are infected with bitterness, our minds instinctively draw up plans for vengeance. We become like nations mobilizing for war, and our words and actions go into "attack mode".

Are you bitter? In Ephesians 4:31 we are told to "get rid of all bitterness, rage and anger..." because God knows that it does us more harm than the person to whom it is directed. Often our minds fixate on what has hurt and offended us, and we replay it over and over again. This just makes us more bitter. We need to ask God to take the needle off the record. We also need to ask Him to help us forgive the person or persons who caused the bitterness. I know you are saying, "But that person who hurt me doesn't deserve to be forgiven!" Forgive him or her anyway, because if he or she has truly wronged you, they are accountable to God for their actions.

True forgiveness releases all the pressure that we can otherwise build up in our lives and cause us great mental stress. It is a wonderful therapeutic device that cleanses, heals, and brings increased love, peace and strength into our lives. True forgiveness is not a grudging burden, but an experience of relief and joy!

Why don't you ask the Lord today to help you get rid of the bitterness you hold toward others? If self-directed bitterness exists, ask the Lord to help you forgive yourself, too! Allow the Lord Jesus to pull up the weeds of bitterness in your life and replace them with the flowers of forgiveness.

Roaming Around With Chuck

A bit more about Texas... my favorite bar in Dallas is the "Hideaway Club", Dallas' original piano bar... with four different piano players during the week. And on Sundays, they have a great cookout on the patio - BYOM- you just bring your own meat and they do the rest. It is 4144 Buena Vista or call (214)559-2966. I found it a rather cruisey place. Good music.

Also in Dallas/Ft. Worth area for NON-bar action... call FAR (Friends Associating and Relating at 727-4163 or 625-9775 between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m. Monday thru Friday! They have a lot of activities and social events. This I check out in all cities when I travel as one can meet quickly some very neat people in various cities... one can usually locate them through local papers or hotline phones.

We are enjoying the rainy days again which is always good for video tape afternoons with chosen friends or dates. And catching up on interesting bits of news relating to the Gay community; such as a column sent to me by Ohio friends from the Kinsey Report written by Dr. June Reinisch who is Director of the Kinsey Institute for Research in Sex, Gender and Reproduction, Indiana University/Bloomington.

She was asked about daily pot smoking and its effects on the male. She says that it can cause erection problems in men. About 20 percent of males in a recent survey had erection problems, also in another survey, daily use created lower testosterone and sperm production. Usually, when pot smoking was stopped, everything reverted back to normal. Yet, the anxiety created over failed erections caused sexual dysfunction after the drug is discontinued. She also said the tight underwear or jeans can reduce a man's sperm count... the testicles naturally hang away from the body as to keep the temperature just right.

The boycott of Miller Beer and Marlboro cigarettes is really spreading across the country. Some bars and clubs in Texas even put the info in their ads so we, as a community, can help defeat Jesse Helms. Miller and Philip Morris claim they donate a lot to AIDS research ... in order to hold on to the Gay business... but they give so much more to Jesse Helms campaigns. Gays in Dallas are supporting Jesse Helms' opponent - Harvey Gantt for U.S. Senate.

The next training session for Shanti Fondation/Tucson is scheduled for October 26-27-28. Already people are signing up. If you want to join the Shanti family in their endeavors to help our brothers and sisters living with HIV and AIDS, sign up now!

There's a Shanti Benefit at the French Quarter coming up Saturday, Sept. 8. Tickets are $5.00 each. Comedian Danny Williams will be performing, so, for a fun evening, put it on your calendar and call the French Quarter or Shanti for tickets.

Gay/Lesbian weekly support groups meeting each Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Francis in the Foothills Church. Call the church at 299-9063 or Paul at 881-5651 for more information.

Until next time, have a good August. Chuck

WHAT'S UP DOC?

it was time for the send-off brunch, repacking of all the gear, loading cars and trailer and those always hard-to-say goodbyes. Upon leaving, TKO left next year's clue for the theme, "Think Pet Rock 10".

There will be some pictures later on when I get some copies of them. One of the photographers was a gal by the name of Nancy, who also became an Associate Member of TKO. The first night there, she was running around trying to get all the pictures of everything she could, the only problem was she had to wait 30 minutes between pictures, for the camera's green light.

During TKO's Christmas Show, Gary S. (yes, another Gary); asked her if the batteries in the camera were good and she said she had just bought them. Well, Gary gave her two new batteries and guess what, a green light. She tried to get a picture of Pam on Santa's lap, only to discover then, no film.

Enough on this run. Do not forget the up and coming Old Pueblo Run put on by TALL over the Labor Day Weekend. Run applications are available at the Graduate now. also, over the Sept.14th Weekend, there is another run. This one is Desert Leathermen's Mystery Run. Applications for this run are available at IBT's. Both runs, the first in town and the second in Patagonia, will be fun with many funny experiences and stories coming out of them, so try to make them.

With that, I'm going to get some much needed rest and a good warm shower. Have fun in the sun but watch those tan lines - too low can hurt when burned!

Politicians Want Chicago AIDS Posters Banned For Their Too Sexual Overtones

by Sarah Nordgren

CHICAGO, IL (AP) - When a poster showing men kissing men and women kissing women was displayed last week on city busses, two politicians said freedom of speech had gone too far.

"Where will we draw the line in terms of this homosexuality-heterosexuality thing?" asked Alderman Robert Shaw, He said he would introduce an ordinance banning the AIDS awareness poster. "Is anything going on in this country now (acceptable) under the guise of free speech?"

About 80 of the posters, which depict three couples-one heterosexual, one Lesbian and one Gay - each locked in a romantic kiss, were displayed last Wednesday, Aug. 15, on buses and transit stations.

"Kissing Doesn't Kill; Greed and Indifference Do," reads the poster, created by a New York art collective. A version has appeared in the mass transit systems of both New York and San Francisco.

"It's our way of saying we're all affected by AIDS," said Gran Fury Collective member Loring McAlpin. "Yes, we are affirming sexuality across the board," she said. "We don't think it's advocating a homosexual lifestyle."

The posters were approved earlier this year and refusing to display them would violate the First Amendment protection of free speech, said Alfred Savage, executive director of the Chicago Transit Authority.

"Under the law, we have a requirement to post them," Savage said. "We have no jurisdiction over the content." The transit authority was sued last year for refusing to post another AIDS awareness poster it deemed "too Black-oriented".

After the American Civil Liberties Union filed suit, the authority began displaying the ads, said John Hammell, who directs the ACLU AIDS and Civil Liberties Program in Chicago.

Alderman Shaw said he planned to call a special City Council meeting to discuss his proposed ordinance, which would bar depictions such as that in Gran Fury's poster. "This poster has nothing to do with the cure of AIDS," he said. "It has something to do with promoting a lifestyle, which I object to."

State Rep. Robert Regan, a Republican said he would reintroduce legislation in the Illinois General Assembly that would bar such displays of sexuality. A similar bill failed this spring.

McAlpin said the poster, paid for by the New York-based American Foundation for AIDS Research, overcame initial objections in San Francisco and New York. "Nobody said, 'this is great, we'll take it' - there was a certain amount of resistance," she said.

The poster is intended to address the deadly virus "as an epidemic of corporate greed, government inaction and public indifference," she said. "We don't believe anyone is going to see that ad and change their sexual preference."

GLAAD Fights for Gay and Lesbian Artists

NEW YORK, NY - The New York Chapter of the Gay & Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation (GLAAD/NY) is urging members of the President's Commission on the National Endowment of the Arts to "take a strong leadership role and stand firm against ... expressions of homophobia".

The Commission was formed by President Bush to make suggestions on possible ways to restructure the process by which the NEA determines which artists should be awarded grants. The Commission is the President's response to recent attacks on the NEA by Senator Jesse Helms and other right-wing legislators who are particularly incensed by the NEA's support of artists who depict Gay and Lesbian-themed work.

In letters written to the Commission, GLAAD also expressed "outrage at the equation of homoeroticism with obscenity in the current statute appropriating funds for the NEA". Finally, GLAAD expressed its belief in a "strong" NEA "whose autonomy [should] be preserved.

"The right-wing's assault on artistic freedom of expression should be of concern to all Americans," said Craig Davidson, GLAAD/NY's Executive Director. "Gays and Lesbians have been singled out so far, but we are only the first of many victims in a war that we all stand to lose."

Earlier this year, Congress prohibited the NEA from funding "homoeroticism". More recently, NEA's Chair John Frohnmayer took the highly criticized step of rejecting the NEA's peer review panel's recommendation to support four artists--three of whom are openly Gay.

In addition to writing letters to the Commission's members, through its Freedom of Expression project, GLAAD/NY has also written letters to every Congressperson asking them to support NEA funding of Gay and Lesbian artists; has worked with the National Gay & Lesbian Task Force to launch and sustain a national post card and letter writing campaign; and was represented at a recent meeting with NEA staff to discuss these issues face-to-face.

Founded in 1985, GLAAD is the only national organization devoted primarily to discouraging negative stereotypes and misinformation about Lesbians and Gay men. It pursues its goal by organizing grass-roots response to public bigotry and working with the media to improve coverage of issues that concern Gay people.
