Straight Talk With Quentin Crisp

By Zachary Woodruff

There could be no doubt about his sex. Then again, he is rather convincing as Queen Elizabeth I. Quentin Crisp is hot property right now, receiving rave reviews for his portrayal of Queen Elizabeth I in Orlando, a film by Sally Potter. Potter's "Orlando" is based on Virginia Woolf's story of a journey through time, of someone who lives for four hundred years, first as a man, then as a woman. Crisp portrays Queen Elizabeth I as she nears the end of her days and becomes so beguiled by the handsome young Orlando that she pledges him the Crown deeds to his ancestral home.

"I could never be a real actor because I've no idea why people do the things that they do," notes Crisp. "So I can't think what Queen Elizabeth's view of herself and her kingdom really are and I don't have any opinions as to how she should be. I simply step into costume and I say the lines and follow the instructions. As Mr. Tracy said of movie acting, 'Toe the mark and say the words.' That's all I really can do."

Now 84 years old, author and actor Crisp has previously appeared in just two stage plays, as Lady Bracknell in "The Importance of Being Earnest" and in "Lord Alfred's" and in just one previous film, Franc Roddam's The Bride (1985) opposite Sting. He also performed a one man show touched all around the world.

Born in Surrey, England, Crisp lived in Epsom with his family until 1931 when he moved to London. He later fulfilled his ambition to move to New York, securing his status there as a resident alien in 1980, and has remained ever since. Best known for his autobiography, The Naked Civil Servant (later dramatized for television with John Hurt in the lead role), Crisp is the author of ten books and continues to write and review films regularly for the New York Native and Christopher Street magazines. Recently, local film critic, Zachary Woodruff, had the opportunity to speak with Crisp.

Z.W.: How did you get started doing movies reviews?

Q.C.: I think my agent asked Mr. Steele, who runs the magazine, Christopher Street, if I might do reviews, and, finally, Mr. Steele consented. For a long time, I went every month to a movie with Mr. Steele and, afterwards, we would discuss the movie and talk about what to write. And that's that.

Z.W.: What kind of movies do you enjoy?

Gay Man Sues OCA For Using Children In Poster

OREGON CITY - A Gay man is suing the Oregon Citizens Alliance and its leaders for $5.5 million a piece for using a picture of his three children in a campaign flier denouncing homosexuality.

Scott Gilbert also said the flier publicized the fact the he and his male partner tested positive for HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

His lawsuit, filed in Clackamas County Circuit Court, claims intentional infliction of emotional distress and invasion of privacy. It asks $500,000 in non-economic damages and $5 million in punitive damages from each defendant.

The lawsuit names the OCA, its No Special Rights political action committee, chairman Lon Mabon, treasurer Bonnie J. Mabon, communications director Scott Lively, and 20 other people who Gilbert claims participated in a conspiracy to harass his family.

"The OCA has no special right to go after a man's job and it has no special right to use other people's children for politics," said Gilbert's attorney, Jacob Tanzer. When reached, Lon Mabon said he could not comment on the lawsuit.

Gilbert and his wife Rochelle divorced on November 20, 1992. They were awarded joint custody of their children, who were then aged 5, 6 and 8.

On March 8, Lively and other defendants demonstrated at the Clackmas County Courthouse and distributed a flier written by Rochelle Gilbert that included a picture of the children.

In the flier, she asked people to call the judge who signed the custody agreement and ask him for a new hearing. She also listed Scott Gilbert's home phone number and asked people to call to urge him to give his ex-wife custody.

The flier also asked people to call Gilbert's employer, a Target department store, and "let them know how badly this reflects on their company."

The insulting remarks made by commentator/politico/bureaucrat Andrew Humm about President Clinton was one of the components of the Gay Cable Network's coverage of the 1993 Gay Pride Parade in New York City.

According to Humm (whose voice now reminds us of a cranky Airedale barking, President Clinton should get off his duff and issue a strong executive order, this resolving the Gay/military issue. Sounds good and simple; however, Humm's non-thinking remarks are yet another example of the self marginalization featured by some profoundly alienated Gay political activists.

Obviously, this self marginalization depends on a misevaluation of where much of power in the U.S. is located. it is probably what happens, more often than not, when you talk with Gay people only.

On the other hand, we believe that President Clinton's effort to lift the policy ban against Lesbians and Gay men in the armed forces has had some very positive results already. The discussion about sexuality and discrimination has been useful no matter what ending is tacked onto the story.

After months of sometimes intense media coverage, as well as hearings by the Senate Armed Services Committee, it is clear that a variation of "Don't ask, don't tell" will be made into the new policy. As a result of the airing out of this issue, it is likely that (as a result of "Don't ask, don't tell") recruits will not be asked about their sexual orientation, and that aggressive investigations (which are expensive) designed to catch and expel homosexuals will cease.

The extent to which Gay soldiers and sailors may acknowledge their sexual orientation under a new edict remains unclear for now. Also, the insistence if some military officers that a statement that homosexuality is incompatible with military service should be retained could upset a negotiated settlement between the military brass (and their friends in the Congress) and President Bill Clinton. We will surely have more answers soon.

Sometimes, we wish somebody with more patience than we have would explain the realities to Andrew Humm and other like minded folks. Their comments and demeanor are unpleasant and, unfortunately directed against an "enemy" who is a friend. By the way, we never expected to see this issue on the front burner nationally when we read a little report about Lesbians and Gay men in the military written by Sue Hyde (then a staff member of NGLTF) several years ago.

On a more serious note, it would be useful, we think, if, at this time, the Gay leaders (who become so shrill so quickly) recognize that the constitutional order and the political culture in the U.S. are very biased against comprehensive changes in policy. Because of the precarious majority for the Democrats in the

DEAR FRIENDS:

Should you happen into Rumorz around nine o'clock or so on a Tuesday evening, and notice a small group of "girls" sitting at a table near the stage area, it's only us, members of the local Transsexual/Transvestual community there for the good live entertainment and the safe company of our Gay/Lesbian brothers and sisters. We are members of Sorority, a support group sponsored by the Gender Crisis Help Line, a world wide referral and information service designed to assist those of us that are either Transsexuals, Transvestites or Gay cross dressers.

We all enjoy the shows and the wonderful performers that work so darn hard to entertain us, but moreover, even though we're broke most of the time, a few bucks manage to get from our purses to the "G" strings of the entertainers, our way of supporting the Gay/Lesbian community. And besides, since you all so lovingly accept us, it's a good way for some of us to dress up and go out now and again. We seem to receive the same kind of (or worse) treatment from the so-called, "normal" blind and uneducated segment of society as you do, and it's always refreshing to know that there really are people in the world that are not so narrowly minded. Our hearts go out to you all. Thank you all for being our friends.

TO PARTNERS:

Thanks for a wonderful tubing trip. I'm probably the only person who got lost from the group at the wrong station, but now I know there are some nice people in Mesa.

Gay Activists Sue Over Military Policy

SEATTLE - After six years in the Army and National Guard, Sgt. Steven Spencer is challenging the Clinton administration's week old policy on homosexuals in the military because he doesn't want to "live a lie."

"I'm not an activist. I'm a regular Joe soldier who wants to be able to serve his country like any other able bodied adult without having to lie about myself," the 26 year old part time soldier said.

Spencer, a nurse with a MASH unit a Camp Murray near Tacoma, is among seven Gay service men and women who challenged the policy in a lawsuit brought on their behalf in Washington D.C., by the American Civil Liberties Union and the Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund, a Gay rights organization.

The lawsuit contends the "don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue" policy is "restrictive, confused and self contradictory" and deprives the plaintiffs of their constitutional rights to free speech and equal protection under the law.

Hola! Y'all

It's hot in the Old Pueblo and August is gonna get hotter with activity. (And no Virginia, Jim Dondson has not contracted me to be the unofficial official Venture-N lawn ornament! Amazing how stories grow. There I was, minding my own business, when...)

Mark you calendars for the following events:

*Sunday, August 15th, Tucson-AGRA Chapter's Executive Board of Directors Meeting at 3 p.m. The General Membership Meeting will take place at 5 p.m., both meetings will take place at Club 2520.

*Sunday, August 22nd, 1st Annual Chuckwagon Breakfast from 12 noon to 3 p.m., at Rumorz, featuring Bucky's Famous Omelet Bar. $3.99 buys you orange juice, potatoes, omelet, roll and coffee.

Also, the same day, beginning at 5 p.m. is The Community Roast of Gary Clark at Club 2520. This benefit is for the M.P.S. Society. Tickets are $20.00 per person and are available through Natalie Perry at 747-7426 or from yours truly at 323-0805. Please support this effort to raise desperately needed funds for research to combat this deadly and fatal disease that is attacking our children.

*Friday, Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, August 21-24, The Graduate's thirtieth anniversary. The owner, Art Lewis, and the Manager, Kenny A., have planned a whole weekend of celebrating for you. Special drink prices; hors d' oeuvres Friday & Saturday (9:30 p.m.); anniversary cake Sunday night, plus everyone purchasing any drink receives a free raffle ticket to win a CD Player to be given away Sunday night. Watch for more details.

*Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, September 3-5, The Zia Regional Rodeo in Albuquerque, New Mexico. For more information call (800) 658-5779.

Tucson AGRA has donated a check for $41.00 to T.L.G.A. collected from tips during the Cinco De Mayo Festivities.

Tucson also welcomes its newest member from Colorado, no making his residence in our fair city. Howdy to Dennis Zastrow.

Confronting Homosexism

This week I expect to resign my membership in a social group to which I have belonged for nearly a year. I don't want to quit the group, but I will have no choice if the proposed new by-laws are voted in. There's a hidden agenda in the new rules that I cannot be a part of.

Until now, this group's policy on membership has been that it is "open to all." The new by-laws require that incoming members be sponsored by a member, fill out an application, be voted on by the board and voted on again by the members. While this procedure may seem innocuous if rather Rotarian, there is more to it.

At last month's meeting, one of the agenda items was a membership inquiry from some friendly females. I thought it was a great idea for the all-male club; it seemed a sign that the group was maturing. Most of the other members reacted as though they would prefer to stick their dicks into a hive of killer bees.

Since that meeting (at which this controversy was tabled by the Chair) a committee has formed to rewrite the group's constitution. What a coincidence that some of the most vocal opponents of female members volunteered for this committee. Since most of the members don't give a hoot about the by-laws, I expect they will pass, though I intend to make a scene. We will be told that the current constitution of the group is too vague or too prescriptive or some such malarkey. The truth is that sexism has reared its ugly head yet again. The boys just can't stand the idea of women belonging to their club.

When I was a little boy, my friend Manuel and I always had a club of some kind going. We would each be president of a club. Depending on how we felt about each other that day, we were perhaps also members of each other's clubs. When I pissed Manuel off (nothing new among my friends) he would yell that I wasn't in his club any more. I would likewise expel him, then go home to sulk around the elm tree in the back yard until we got over our-selves. We also accepted and rejected Manuel's little sisters and brother in like manner. Contrary to cartoonist's stereotype, we never excluded his sisters for being girls.

I've told you that I knew I was queer at the age of three. I also knew that I loved being male, that I had no desire to be female, but that girls were pretty neat. I liked playing with girls because they played cooperative, imaginative games that we made up as we went along. Manuel and the other little boys in the neighborhood always wanted to play war or Cowboys and Indians or baseball or some such macho drivel. They just wanted to beat somebody else.

I didn't think that was fun then, and I don't now. I didn't understand why anyone would throw girls out for not being boys. Catholic school put girls and boys in separate lines, separate recess, and separate social classes. Girls couldn't serve Mass or be priests; they were only allowed in the sanctuary to get married or become nuns. Fortunately, some of the nuns were sly feminists (not to mention the Lesbians). They saw to it that their female students learned how to have a life amid the decorous Roman patriarchy.

My friend Jean has a lot to say about the patriarchy. She came out as a Lesbian about twenty years ago in New York. She did her Feminism 101 amid some strongly separatist women who raised her consciousness about what it means to be female, much less a dyke, in this society. A few years ago she fell in love with a man and heaped guilt on her head for doing so. She got over it, I'm glad to say, and married the man she loves. She still fights the stupidity of the patriarchy, but in her own heart there is room for men. She has learned that separatism diminishes us. I love her and miss her; she and her husband just moved to Singapore. I wish she were here to share her lessons with us.

Please note: I do not deny the right of wimmin to separate themselves from a corrupt and sexist system. I assert, however, that as queers of whatever gender, we have common cause. Our common oppressors delight in our in-fighting; their "divide and conquer" strategy continues to fool us.

Have we been paying attention to the continuing "status vs. conduct" argument? Our assertion to the homophobes in the military and the Congress has been that what we are is insignificant, it's what we do that counts. If we believe that, we should treat each other that way.

I am sick of hearing sexist trash from queer men. I hate the unequal way wimmin are treated in most queer bars in this town. I miss the female friends I used to see in my favorite bar until the management and clientele froze them out. The sexism I see among my own so-called community makes me furious.

I love women, I just don't make love to them! It makes for the perfect friendship: no sexual tension, no bullshit, no competition, no ordained roles.

Why should men (especially queer men) be threatened by that? Maybe the guys can't face the truth: being male isn't innately superior. My women friends can be counted on for the truth; maybe that's what the good ol' boys are afraid of.

Wake up, guys! This foolishness is beneath us. It's dangerous to our prospects for social progress. It's limiting. It's stupid. Stop trashing women! There are enough real threats to us without making up false ones. Don't believe those who say we're queer because we fear women. The real difference is that we respect women. Let down the barriers; come out as feminist! The true separation is between human beings and caricatures.

Senate, President Clinton's economic stimulus was filibustered to death and his BTU tax was gutted, turning out to be something else again. In spite of this recent history, President Clinton is trashed by Andrew Humm for not delivering 100% on the Gay/military issue. Meanwhile, there are some people in the White House who wish he hadn't put his hand on this hot stove.

The Bowling Beat

by Mark Rosenbaum

Greetings from the Gutter! The Bowling Beat has returned from a brief Summer hiatus, somewhat refreshed and ready to roll...

LEAGUE NEWS AND INFORMATION: It may seem hard to believe (since the monsoons finally arrived just yesterday) but the Fall bowling season is less than 4 weeks away. Informational/sign-up flyers have been posted in the local bars (look for the blue or purple bound pads) with all the pertinent details. The Tucson Desert Coyotes will again bowl on Wednesday nights at 9pm. In addition, a new league has formed that will bowl on Friday nights at 6:30pm. Both leagues are mixed (both men and women welcome, any mix) and handicapped (handicap established after the first night). As always, we encourage both new and experienced bowlers to join us... no set average or experience level is required.

As in years past, the Tucson Desert Coyotes in conjunction with Golden Pin Lanes will be offering a 'Get Acquainted Night' of free bowling where you can come to socialize, get in some practice before the season officially opens, or just get a feeling for the largest weekly gay/lesbian event here in Tucson. Last years Fall/Winter league had over 100 members and we hope to top that this year. Plus, with a second, earlier league forming, we hope to accommodate even more people. In addition to bowling, there'll be some special prizes and raffles and league officers will be on hand to answer any informational questions you may have.

For the Wednesday league (Tucson Desert Coyotes), the free 'Get Acquainted Night' is Wednesday, August 25th and starts at 8pm. The first night of league play will be Wednesday, September 1st, commencing at 8pm with an organizational meeting (rules, team sign-up) followed by league play at 9pm. (Bowling will begin at 9pm each week thereafter.) For the Friday league, the free 'Get Acquainted Night' and organizational meeting will take place Friday, August 20th starting at 6pm, with official league play commencing one week later. For more information on either league, call Geoffery Wilcox at 884-8443.

UPCOMING EVENTS: This Saturday, August 7th, H.I.T.T. will be sponsoring a "Buy the Cup" beer bust at the Graduate from 2-6pm. The draft will be served in special, bottomless 'Family of Pride' commemerative cups which you may keep. (Our thanks to T.L.G.A. for donating the cups!). Your host for the afternoon will be R.T. Stacked, (previously called Ms. Dance and Entertainment by some), a recent, and very welcome addition to the H.I.T.T. Committee. R.T. will be handling the raffle tickets (and some of the 'merchandise', no doubt) with a cash payback that afternoon. The Graduate's pool tournament will be going on, too so it promises to be a fun afternoon with plenty to do.

The first annual Monsoon No-Tap tournament will take place on Sunday, August 29th at 1pm. In case you missed the May-Day No-Tap, this is a 3 game tournament where 9 pins on the first ball of a frame is scored as a strike. Following bowling, there will be a H.I.T.T. 'special Sunday' at Club 2520 featuring a bottomless cup beer bust from 2-7pm and a special, benefit show at 8pm.

ATTENTION K-MART SHOPPERS, SWAP-MEET SHOPPERS, ALL SHOPPERS: There will be a gigantic rummage sale on Saturday and Sunday, September 11th & 12th. There'll be LOTS of fabulous 'stuff', collectibles, books, music, and anything else that we can haul over and put a (very small) price tag on. If you'd like to donate any items, H.I.T.T. will gladly arrange pick-up (old lovers accepted ONLY if rich and philanthropically inclined). For more information or to arrange for donation pick-up, call 743-3303. (Location information and more details will appear in upcoming issues of the Observer)

by Mark Kerr

Mahoney flip flops, big time!. Pima Democrats file suit and hold press conference (and the press showed up!). Pima Libertarians open up their city primary. Some registration numbers. A petition drive to have open primaries has started. And some end notes. Here we go:

Our Secretary of State, Richard Mahoney, eyeing a possible challenge of Dennis DeConcini for the Democratic nod for the U.S. Senate, will be making the sequel to early 80's hit by Oblivious Neutron Bomb, "Let's Get Physical." Mahoney's version will be called, "Let's Get Hypocritical."

Why might you ask? Well, recently at the meeting of the Phoenix Nucleus Club, (a Democratic group), for which he gave a speech, which observers there described it as rambling, was asked, "If you were Senator, would you vote in favor of the proposed budget by President Clinton?" Mahoney's response to the question was "No."

What's the brouhaha? Well, about a 1 1/2 months ago (in the middle of June), (as reported in this column), Mahoney gave a short introductory speech at the Arizona State Democratic Party Awards Banquet, which took place in Phoenix thanked DNC Chair David Wilhelm, Representatives Karan English and Ed Pastor for having the courage to support the President when it came to his budget. Mahoney's remarks was perceived, by persons present, as an attack on Senator Dennis DeConcini, who was present at the banquet, also during his talk, Mahoney stated his support of Clinton and the budget. (Gee, now he doesn't support the President!).

The Pima County Democrats filed suit last week to stricken from the 1993 City ballot a referendum which would make the Mayor and Council elections non-partisan, and the Council elections would be by Ward. The suit states that the referendum is illegal because there are two different proposals being considered by one vote.

At the press conference, Pima County Democratic Chair, John Soltero stated his opinions about the present system for city elections. "It's nice. We like it. The present system has worked," Soltero responded when asked by the press.

The Pima County Libertarian Party last week, announced that they would be opening their primaries up to other voters. This will start with the 1993 City of Tucson elections. Persons registering as independents or with parties that have not qualified for the ballot will be eligible to vote. Also, the Libertarian spokesperson issued a challenge to the Pima County Democratic and Republican parties to do the same and open up their primaries.

The recent voter registration numbers for the state were released. The Democrats have made the biggest gain, 5,000 registrations since the last report, which was done in April of this year. The Democrats have cut the Republican margin down to 43,000, they have 42.61% of the registered voters. The G.O.P. has 44.-84%, the remainder is with the Libertarians, Green, New Alliance, other parties and registered independents.

An effort to open the primaries to everyone has started. This effort is being run by a Phoenician, John Fillmore, chair of Greater Arizona V.O.T.E. (Voting Open To Everyone). Fillmore, a Republican, stated that the present system disenfranchises the 262,000 registered independents, and that opening the primaries up would give the two major parties a true cognizant where they stand by the turnout in an open primary.

The group will have to get 105,-000 signatures by July 1994 to qualify for the 1994 Election ballot, their intentioned goal.

SOME END NOTES

The State Party will be holding their annual Executive Meeting, Fish Fry in Show Low, at the Paint Palace, this coming Saturday. The fish fry will cost $20, for reservations, directions or information call the State Party at 257-9136. (Also, candidates and wannabees will be there so residents of Show Low, you have been warned!)

On Monday, September 6th, a Labor Day rally and picnic is going to take place in Phoenix at Wesley Bolin Park. This event is sponsored by the AFL-CIO, and yours truly has been invited to march and participate! (Highlights in a future column.)

A note to the person(s) who put together the Pima County Democrat newsletter who gave Cyvia Wohlman such a short, generic tribute, and lopped her in with two other people, party workers, who had passed away.

Unless you have been under a rock for the past several years, Cyvia did a lot more for the County party, State party, National party, and the political spectrum for Southern Arizona, than to deserve such a kiss off as she was given by you people! Don't you remember John Dougherty, or Marion Pickens, or the Green Valley Democrats!

Lastly, a quickie about "Our Favorite Elected Official." Well, a surprise meeting took place between "F." and Winston Smith, the person who challenged her, in a bitter race, for the Democratic nod for Recorder last year, when Smith had to go into the Recorder's Office on some business. What was the reaction? Did she try to make up? Bury the hatchet? Nope, she quickly went back into her office, not even saying hello. (What a pity, I thought everyone was welcome in the office!)

Until next time, do we care?

WHAT'S UP DOC???

TKO's City of Rocks Run, Aug 20-22, is still three weeks away but last weekend at the Graduate, there were several people talking to me about possibly going. Some have been there before but for others, this would be their first time. If you need a map, give me a call a 323-8994 and I'll get a copy to you. I noticed that all the run applications I'd placed on the bulletin board at the bar were gone. Well, never fear because you can bet one will be available for you to sign and of course pay that outrageous run fee ($15) at the run site.

For all of you that may be going on this run for the first time, the clubs can guarantee you will have a very memorable and interesting time. If you doubt this, contact Ron Brookman, who was a first timer last year on this run. I'm sure he will be able to give you some interesting details, and possibly instructions. Knowing him, he will probably tell you of one individual that is off limits to all, except himself.

TKO will be having their monthly meeting this coming Saturday so this is another place you can get a copy of the map. The meeting is open to anyone who possibly would be interested in joining, or anyone wishing to be there just to nib-shit. Directions, and time can be received by calling 623-0993.

At this meeting, all pertinent details will be discussed concerning this run, plus vehicles making the trip. For anyone who may require transportation, I have to know this so that I will be able to make arrangements. For anyone who is going on this run, the bulk of the crew will be leaving Venture-N that Friday morning around 9 AM. The truck pulling the trailer will be there for you to load any camping gear you may not have room for in your vehicle. So far, I know of maybe 7 different vehicles making this trip, some leaving at different times.

After Saturday's meeting, I'll place all final details, plus a list of items you should bring along in next week's column. Again, if you need a map or just want more details concerning this run, give me a call.

CHAPTER #2 in the never ending saga of "Stan - the man". I hope that when you read this you are having a beautiful and happy day. After seeing the large crowd Saturday and watching you, I must say the little advertisement last week helped. Even when your vitals arrived you were still moving a wee bit faster. No Stan, I do not need your feather duster, I have one of my own and I guarantee it is not PINK. Hell, with all the advertisement I gave you last week, I think instead of speaking over the speaker system, you should compensate me, preferably in the monitary style. And, in closing this chapter, keep up the good work. I, along with others, have noticed your lower button is open, just advertising for you again.

TBBS: Another individual that I could write about, of course we all know there are many in Tucson, is one we all have to BEAR. He is one we have all faced time and time again, especially when he wants something. It seems Rudi broke water on the stage at the Graduate last Saturday. Has he been sleeping with that bear? One person who needs some advertisement for his @#%&* skills at bartending is one whose name ends in UCK. I guess I'll just have to go spend some time observing him and pass on the sordid details to you.

I guess that will be it for another week. When are we going to get some rain? Yes, if we do I'd have to cut my grass, non-smoking type, but what the hell. Have a caring week. If you step on another's toes, be adult and apologize. If it was your toes stepped on, accept the apology and be forgiving. Remember, it is better to have 10 days of love than years of regretting.

News From MCC/Tucson

by Ben Corbin

For MCC-Tucson this year of 1993 is a big year for Conferences in Arizona. We have just finished with the General Conference XVI in Phoenix which will be the last General Conference in this area for many years to come. Now we can start preparing for the Southwest District Conference which will beheld here in Tucson in November.

MCC-Tucson began its existence 22 years ago with the first service held in the Ramada Inn, Downtown. There were six individuals present at this initial gathering. Now we will have our District Conference at the same place with several hundred in attendance from Arizona, Southern California, New Mexico and Nevada. The District Conference will be held from Thursday through Sunday the first part of November, the exact dates will be announced. With the District Conference coming to Tucson in about three months we will be preparing for it starting immediately.

As an update, the Memorial Rose Garden is surviving through these days of 100 degrees and over. Some of the bushes look a little bleak but with our help they will make it. We have lost two bushes because of the heat, but replacements have already been ordered. We received confirmation about two weeks ago that the new bushes will be sent the last part of December. However, we can report that most of the rose bushes are still blooming but the blooms last about two days during this weather.

Thought for the week: Man once subscribed to the theory of male superiority, then woman canceled his subscription.

A View From The Rock

A Commentary From Cornerstone Fellowship

Recently we returned from a trip to Hawaii. If you've seen Jurassic Park then you've seen a part of Hawaii, because it was filmed there. The beauty is beyond description, with 14 of the 16 climatic zones found there. It is clean, beautiful and breathtaking, a real paradise.

When God created the world it was a paradise. Everything lived in harmony and life was wonderful. Then sin crept in and paradise was gone. Think about a world free of crime, free of prejudice, free of sickness, free of trash, free of graffiti, free of air pollution. Wouldn't that be the place you would want to go? I sure do. In fact, that's where I'm headed one day.

Would you like to go along? You can. One day I'm going to live in a place far more beautiful than Hawaii, the Florida Keys, or the Virgin Islands. Jesus called the place Paradise. How can you go? It's actually very simple. You must first admit that you're a sinner and that Jesus was the son of God who died for your sins. Then you must make him Lord of your life. When you do that you have your ticket for the journey. And you'll live there eternally.

You see, the time we exist on earth is just a short expanse of time. When we leave this life we'll go on to another existence. The book of James in the New Testament says in 4:14 that "you do not even know what will happen tomorrow. What is your life? You are a mist that appears for a little while and then vanishes." Where will you go when it vanishes? We have a choice where we'll go. As a Christian, I can't wait to see a place more beautiful than Hawaii! It's where I'll go when I leave the earth. All people are welcome there: Gay, straight, black, white, male, female. Galatians 3:25 says we "are all one in Christ Jesus."

You can be a part of those who go to heaven. Would you like that assurance? It will give you a new joy and happiness that comes from Jesus Christ. Talk to a Christian about it. Unfortunately many Christians are closeted too, but we're out there. If you can't find someone, drop by Cornerstone Fellowship. We have Sunday School for adults at 9:00 a.m. and worship services at 10:30 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. Or stop by and pick up a Bible to investigate this for yourself. Like the Nike commercial says, "Just Do It!"

Bit Of The Old South

by Sean Thomas

For a number of years various government and private agencies have tried to change people's behavior by various programs and campaigns. With in most cases very little effect. Of course the saying is that if you have saved one in a hundred, then the program was a success.

But what about the 99 unaffected by the program? According to the latest study of local Gay men in Tucson, a very high percentage still refuse to use a condom during intercourse. They ask questions of the participants and will always get an excuse. It is human nature to try to justify or excuse our personal behavior.

Generally when a person is told that their behavior or actions are wrong, we become defensive or go into denial. This is the obstacle so many well intentioned people are not seeing or addressing. Fear has been the most effective tool for behavior change. Unfortunately most people feel it does not directly effect them, so they don't have to deal with it or the precautions to avoid infection.

For the most part, people are aware of the modes of transmission (how you can get it). But unfortunately there are people who are interested in criticizing the efforts to understand this pandemic without any positive input. There is always those who like to bitch. On occasion even I do. But I always give some very positive, constructive ideas as well.

In this case to bitch for the sake of bitching, can cause people's ignorance and in some cases, death. We do not have all the facts we need to know if all parties join the same bandwagon. I won't even address the utter stupidity of the political or religious right. That would take another column to do it justice.

The first step in behavior change is being made aware. And many of the present programs do just that. Step one is taken, what next? If you have ideas and suggestions on how to effect behavior change, believe me your ideas would be very welcomed by those who are serious about trying to be effective.

Unfortunately, there are agencies and organizations that are more concerned about themselves and their public image than the people they have been funded and intrusted to assist. Many times the level of bureaucracy, accessibility and paperwork an organization inflicts on its clients can be a sure sign of the level of compassion they have. Profits are being made and reputations are being made as a direct involvement in this tragedy.

When salaries become greater than the services provided and the heads of these organizations are not available to the clients they serve, there is a problem. This means that they are losing heart and are becoming cold and governmental. Yes, you can be effective in correcting this horrible waste. Stand up and say something. !Get involved in the solution. Without your input, it will be business as usual, if not worse. Make a difference, sat something.

HOROSCOPES by Daryl

ARIES
MARCH 21 - APRIL 19

Scanning the surface of matters that personally concern you will not prove sufficient. Your health and financial pictures may be in limbo if no attention is given and focus falls by the wayside. It will pay to be self analytical this week.

TAURUS
APRIL 20 - MAY 20

Romance i son the rise and you give it an extra boost this week. If single,a date is a sure bet. Your natural charm will win you a lot this week and promote your ability to work hard and maintain and even-tempered work relationship.

GEMINI
MAY 21 - JUNE 21

Family and friends seem to glide along smoothly this week which takes a burden off your shoulders. With those matters out of the way, you assess your place in the professional aspect. Get out and relax a little to improve your judgement.

CANCER
JUNE 22 - JULY 22

You are feeling empowered beyond a normal degree. Your instinct is to counsel and cajole those on the homefront. If you are feeling scattered about how to begin, bounce your strategy off a close friend for direction. A house is not a home without you and those you love.

LEO
JULY 23 - AUGUST 22

Your magnetism generates well being in those around you. This bring attention to advancement at work and confidence on the homefront. People may come and go but, love and friendship endures miles, years and time. Cherish the highest quality of life and your journey will never end.

VIRGO
AUGUST 23 - SEPTEMBER 22

Your keen analysis converts an everyday routine into a much faster and efficient process. Your relations with professional people are unbalanced, but, totally salvageable. Use your sense of balance and execute your game plan.

LIBRA
SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23

You manage to be in the spotlight again at work for your very capable management skills. This parlays into a possible promotion and different department placement. Be sure to anchor your friendship with coworkers before this shift occurs.

SCORPIO
OCTOBER 24 - NOVEMBER 21

You have the ability to communicate with many on a metaphysical basis. Use this ability to enhance children and be a conduit to enjoyment in life. Romance is not out of the question and seems to be optimal this week. Go Scorpio, go!

SAGITTARIUS
NOVEMBER 22 - DECEMBER 21

Cupid sends a stinging shot this week and rushes you into a romantic frenzy. Hold onto your hat as the prospects are many and intriguing. Try not to let past experience get in the way of current attractions. Enjoy!

CAPRICORN
DECEMBER 22 - JANUARY 19

You will get communications from people this week broadening your good nature. Nothing will be too large to overcome and your charm will be the fulcrum of all your endeavors. Enjoy the good mood and look to the future for joy.

AQUARIUS
JANUARY 20 - FEBRUARY 18

You interact in a situation by using your gut feeling. Fortunately you made a wise decision which sub-conscientiously was governed by intuition. You are very in-touch with your dreams this week and remain constant will all other aspects of life.

PISCES
FEBRUARY 19 - MARCH 20

Virgo will need your very open arms this week. Travel dominates your plans and intertwines romance and discovery. Count on your close friendships for endorsement and promotion. Your job is mentally on the back burner which is okay for now.

BEARS of the Old Pueblo

by Rich G.

This last weekend was hot enough for me. How about you??! The weathermen keep teasing me with their talk of rainstorms. I think they are just crying "Wolf!". We'll have to "bear" down and endure the worst.

The mountains are calling to me again and I am going to have to answer them soon. Another trip to the cooler altitudes is definitely in my future. The meager rains in the mountains probably haven't filled the streams yet. I don't care as long as I can relax in my lawnchair in the company of good friends.

August is going to be a slower month. We're only going to have one event this month. It will be a Movie Night at my apartment (again) on the 14th. It will start about 7:30 p.m. At intermission, the pool will be available for cooling off. Give me a call for directions.

For the future, there will be a C.U.B.S. gathering on the first weekend of Sept. and the "OctoBearFest" will be hosted by the Front Range Bears in Denver this year. We will have more info at upcoming meetings and in the newsletters for everyone interesting in going to these events.

The General Meeting is on Thursday Aug. 5th. We'll be greeting a returning member and saying goodbye to two other Bears. Welcome Back, Lindsey, and Good Luck in England, Don and Webster!. See ya later! Hugz, Rich (790-9419)

Q.C.: The kind of movies I like are movies with plots. I don't like movies about whether I love you more than you love me. I find that very tiresome, just as one does in real life. Police movies and private eye movies are the movies that I like. They have to have some action. I don't mind whether everybody gets killed or not, so as there's something to think about.

Z.W.: Did you see The Crying Game?

Q.C.: I saw The Crying Game secretly and, along with the synopsis that you get in secret showings, there was a letter going "Shhh!," and we were not allowed to reveal the terrible secret. It's difficult to review a movie without giving things away.

Z.W.: What did you think of the secret?

Q.C.: Once you know the secret, you run the whole movie back through your head. It seems unlikely, to put it mildly, that anyone would invite someone to call on his girlfriend if he knew that it was not a woman. In that situation, you would do anything to have that secret not discovered. It's so improbable. There was another man who seemed jealous of the other woman (the transvestite). That is nonsense. Nobody is jealous of the life of a drag queen. However, I was never bored during the movie.

Z.W.: Do you still review movies?

Q.C.: I now review movies whenever Mr. Steele is available. He now works very hard running four different magazines. So I don't do it as much.

Z.W.: Why do you need Mr. Steele with you in order to review a movie?

Q.C.: If I went by myself, I'd have to pay, and I don't like to do that. In earlier times in England, a theater seat cost nine pence. Now I believe it's seven dollars.

Z.W.: Have you seen Orlando?

Q.C.: I saw a secret showing of Orlando when I went to the Museum of Modern Art in New York. I never dreamed it would be shown to real people. I regarded it as unabashed festival material.

Z.W.: What do you think is the message behind the story's gender-bending?

Q.C.: I don't think it's a film with a message. I think it's a vast pageant. And it's very good as that. The art direction is quite remarkable because each century has its own color constancy. One critic said it might have been better as a book of photographs. And, in a way, it is a book of photographs.

Z.W.: What were your feelings about getting the chance to play a literal queen after spending your life as a figurative one?

Q.C.: Well, I had, of course, no feelings about it at all. I do as I'm told. I'm a born slave. And Ms. Potter (Sally Potter, the director) came to New york, I hope not only to see me, but to see me among other people, and I went to meet her and I read a few lines from the script. She said, "Will you do it?" and I said, "I want what you want."

Z.W.: I've heard you say that before. Why do you have an "I want what you want attitude?"

Q.C.: It's my nature. I have never tried to assert my will over anything or anybody. If you do that, then you're responsible for what happens. But if you never do that, then you're never to blame. When I was a child, all I wanted to be was a chronic invalid. And now I have an agent, which is exactly the same thing. Whenever people ask me in the street, "Hello, how are you?," I say, "You'll have to ask my agent."

Z.W.: Are you still doing your stage show?

Q.C.: I gave up doing the one man show. I think I've said it all now. Now I'm just trying to behave nicely.

Z.W.: How are you doing that?

Q.C.: I'm rushing from pillar to post being interviewed and saying the usual things in the usual way. When I go home, I'll have a days work in a movie, that I'll call experimental, made by students in a dim cellar. In Manhattan, every flat surface is a stage.

Z.W.: What are some of your favorite current films?

Q.C.: I haven't seen many wonderful current films. Reservoir Dogs is a very exciting movie. It's slightly amoral because, as you know, they catch a policeman and they tie him to a chair and carve his face. Ten minutes later, he is shot, which means that the plot has not been advanced one inch by the torture scene. It's only there to assuage the American public's lust for violence against the police force, and that's a sin. Otherwise, I enjoyed it.

I also liked Bad Lieutenant. That also features Mr. (Harvey) Keitel who has become very, very good. Well, it was a bit mawkish in the end when you-know-who came off the cross and stood in the middle of a church. I think the intent was to be as shocking as possible. Each movie has to go further than the last so they've all gotten much worse.

Z.W.: What do you think of the way homosexuals are represented in movies?

Q.C.: I don't really understand what all the fuss is about. I once was at a party when Kiss of the Spider Woman was mentioned. I took a deep breath, and was about to act out the whole movie, when a man said, "Don't see it." And I said, "What makes you say that?" And he said, "It's a typical straight person's view of a Gay person." And I said, "What's that go to do with it?" If he (William Hurt's character) had been the modern homosexual, he'd have said, "Take the damn message yourself." It's only because Mr. Hurt thought he was Sonia Braga that made him take the message. Without it, there is no plot. What the world thinks of the image has nothing to do with it. What matters is the movie.

Z.W.: Do you think you have succeeded in opening others' minds to homosexuality?

Q.C.: Well, I never really had that as a mission, of course. I was trying to survive at any cost.

Z.W.: You have said that it's easier to survive in America than it is England. Why do you think that is?

Q.C.: In America, at least in big cities, you don't have any problem because, in America, everybody is your friend. In England, nobody is your friend. I think it's the English temperament. The English are island people. They haven't been bothered with outside influence since that unpleasantness with the Normans. They treasure their indignation and it makes them very hard to get along with. When I was last there, I was giving a talk and the audience asked me if I noticed any change in England's attitude toward homosexuals. I said, "You're getting better." And they applauded. Then I added, "You're becoming more American." And they laughed uneasily.

Z.W.: Do you have any guiding principles that have helped you to better survive?

Q.C.: Not really. I just had to live through it, which I did. The one thing you must never do is defend yourself. If you do, you'll be killed because you're never attacked in the street by just one person.

Z.W.: But hasn't that changed? Shouldn't people defend themselves?

Q.C.: I do think times have changed. But it was the only way to deal with it that I knew.

Z.W.: How do you feel about all the show biz attention you're getting now?

Q.C.: Well, of course, Americans are mad about show business so that the moment you've been on stage, even for ten minutes, they feel they should talk to you and get your autograph and question you. And that's fine with me. I'm willing to be questioned forever and ever. Whenever I go back to New York, I allow a little way laying time in case anyone stops me and wants to talk to me. I enjoy it. You see, people are my only pastime so that the more people I'm with, the better I like it. If I have an ambition, it's to meet everybody in the world before I die. And I'm not doing badly.

Z.W.: Aren't your books and other endeavors meaningful to you?

Q.C.: No. I write the books they tell me to write. When I hand in my typescript, I say, "Are these the words you wish to print?" When I'm on stage, I say, 'Are these the words you wish to hear?"

Z.W.: What do you think caused you to become famous without ambition?

Q.C.: I think people think that my life was more deliberate than it was. Actually for instance, it was very hard for me to find work in England and I did whatever came to hand. I wrote books, did drawings for commercial purposes. I taught tap dancing. I never had any talent for any of these things, but what else could I do?

Z.W.: Do you think it's easier to make it in America?

Q.C.: In America, you don't have to work. You can give up tomorrow. You can go into the smiling and nodding business. I'm in that business and I'm here doing it at the moment.

Z.W.: What is one thing you've learned in your life that you'd like to pass on to others?

Q.C.: If you want a message to your readers, tell them they don't have to win. Everyone thinks they have to succeed, and worse, they think they have to be better than other people. It's a mistake to compare yourself to other people. What matters is not what the world thinks of you, but what you think about yourself.
